Santa Gertrudis Cattle Provide 'The Good Life' For Texan

ROSSER, Texas — At Double T Ranch, the red-copper colored Santa Gertudis cattle "have been good to us," said Wylie Taliaferro, ranch owner and operator and vice president of the Santa Gertudis Breeder International Organization.

Summer temperatures at the ranch routinely top 100 degrees, the herd has 4,500 acres to roam on, and the pastures boast mainly Bermuda grasses. It is easy to see that cattle here live differently than typical East Coast cattle.

Comprised of 9,800 acres, half leased and half owned, the ranch is home to 700 brood cows, 200 bred heifers, and 50 herd sires — one of the five largest Santa Gertrudis operations in Texas. In addition, Taliaferro develops 60-100 bulls for sale. He raises most of the herd's replacement heifers.

Wheat, hay, and milo make up 4,500 acres of crops, with the remainder of acreage in pasture.

"It's been a good life," said Taliaferro. "The cattle have added a lot to our life, with the friends we've made and people we know.

"We have friends scattered everywhere. When I'm traveling, if I get in trouble, I call a Santa Gertrudis breeder."

Standing on top of a grassy knoll in the pasture, he points to the gray outlines of skyscrapers in the distance. Located only 37 miles south of Dallas, the ranch continues to operate in the face of encroaching development.

Taliaferro, who grew up ranching, took over the operation from his father. When he was 12 years old, he took most of the responsibilities of the ranch to allow his father time to work at an off-farm job.

After graduating from college and teaching vocational agriculture and coaching basketball for 22 years in a nearby high school, he entered full-time ranching in 1986.

His history with the Santa Gertrudis breed, however, reaches back to his college days, when he decided to experiment with the breed and bought his first "Gert" bull. His father, a dedicated Hereford breeder, was leery of the red-hided animal.

"Daddy was a Hereford man straight," said Taliaferro. "When I brought that red bull in, he said, 'don't you put that thing on my MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — To most grocery shoppers, quality and freshness is top priority.

Members of Pennsylvania's beef industry hope to capitalize on that emphasis by introducing a label that touts both the quality and locality of the beef product it is affixed to.

Although the program is still in the planning stages, steps have been made toward placing a yellow-and-blue logo on packaged beef that comes from Pennsylvania producers who are certified in the Beef Quality Assurance program.

Recently a nine-member Beef Quality Assurance commission met to discuss planning and implementation of the program, which is slated to roll out with a consumer education and awareness marketing initiative in January 2003.

Besides checkoff dollars, USDA and Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) grant money will be used to support the

Conference Examines Keys To Milk Quality

DAVE LEFEVER

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The key to quality milk is healthy teat ends.

That was the premise of a day-long conference led by Penn State dairy science experts and other speakers Wednesday at the Lancaster Host Resort. About 20 veterinarians and other ag professionals attended.

Dr. Bhushan Jayarao, Penn State veterinary science department, spoke on the need for producers to adopt an evaluation system to get a handle on the health of their cows' teats on a regular basis.

Poor teat health can be caused by several factors, Jayarao said. These include irritation by milking machines — mainly by overmilking or milking when the rate of flow is too small, poor housing conditions, poor cow management, or chemical irritation.

Dr. Dave Wolfgang, extension veterinarian, said he sees a significant number of teats in poor condition when he visits dairy farms throughout the state. The main causes are probably overmilking and not adequately preparing the cows to properly let down their milk, thus causing a low rate of flow.

Increased risk of mastitis and higher somatic cell counts are two costly results of poor teat health. While U.S. researchers have yet to put an exact figure on

MPCs Cause Dry Milk Surplus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Imports of milk protein concentrates, known as MPCs, have reduced consumption of domestically produced protein and contributed to a huge accumulation of nonfat dry milk by the U.S. government.

That is the conclusion of Ken Bailey, associate professor of agricultural economics in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, in a recent study published in the journal Agricultural CATTLE: Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold steady to weak. The quality of the run was average to plain, with not nearly the amount of fancy steers that usually make their way through the ring. Bidding was only moderate due to the quality, although very active when a higher quality steer would come through the door. Buyers did not seem to get very involved in Tuesday's run and prices were affected due to the light interest The direct feed yards out West moved their low Choice steers at mostly 69.00 late last week, which would now be considered a slight premium to the local trade. A very light run of Holstein steers sold with a weaker undertone, with not enough slaughter heifers for a market test. A fairly good run of slaughter cows sold steady to firm. Fleshier cows were in fairly short supply, although the demand for good Breaking cows was definitely there The run consisted of primarily lean cows, and buyers had there work cut out for them as they sorted through the various qualities. Slaughter bulls were in very light supply, and sold with a weaker undertone on the very light test. The supply included 47 percent steers, 9 percent heifers, 41 percent cows, 2 percent bulls, with the balance feeders. Note· Due to the Veterans Day Holiday on Monday, the Vintage slaughter cattle sale was not covered. Therefore, prices quoted in this report are on Tuesdays supply only.

CALVES: Compared to last Tuesday, veal calves sold steady to firm on a good run and buyer interest. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply higher in very active bidding. Prices on the 95-125 lb bull supply in the graded sale were quick to break the 130.00 barrier, and not long after that the 145.00 mark For several weeks in a row, Holstein heifers have traded lower after their brothers sold higher. Heifer prices continue to struggle to keep above the 400.00 mark, as the cold rains seemed to have cooled off the bullish attitudes Heifer buyer' exhibited only a few short months ago. The supply included 622 head in the state graded sale, with around 87 percent of the graded supply returned to feed.

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold 1.00 to mostly 2.00 higher; with instances of 3.00 higher. The sale kicked off with several high dressing Charolais cross steers, which sold from 70.00-72.75, which really got the good crowd that was on hand and the buyers involved in the sale; and it wasn't long after that when the bulk of the Choice steers were trading in the 70.00 range with the high dressers trading up to 74.00. Bidding was very active as buyers welcomed both the increase in quality and the increase in receipts; as this weeks' run included nearly 200 head more than last weeks'. Buyers were also very interested in procuring steers that weighed from 1000-1200 lbs to go back on feed. Granted, a few of these lighter steers may have graded Select, but give them a couple more months on feed, and in turn a couple hundred more pounds and they will be Choice or Prime This speculation may pay off, as the February live cattle contract at the CME is nearly to the 77 00 mark, with many analysts expecting an increase in live cattle prices this winter There were a few slaughter heifers on offer, although with hardly any on Tuesday's market, a trend was not established Holstein steers were also compared to a light run on Tuesday, with the Choice supply trending mostly steady. There were several high Choice and Prime steers in the mix as well, with prices quickly breaking the 60.00 barrier as buyers actively bid on the fancy supply A good run of slaughter cows sold 1 00-2 00 higher Buyer attendance and activity was very good, and the quality of the run was pretty good as well Slaughter bulls sold 1.00-2 00 higher on a very good test The bull run included some higher quality bulls and even the heavy and lower dressing bulls sold with a firmer undertone. The supply included 41 percent steers, 6 percent heifers, 33 percent cows, 7 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction
NEW HOLLAND, PA
November 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 508 Last Week: 560 Year Ago: 431

Compared to last week, a feeder pig trend was not fully established due to only around 6 percent of the run returning to feed. However, on the few comparable lots prices trended with a higher undertone as the few feeder buyers on hand were paying slaughter prices to procure their needs. Out of state feeder buyer attendance is still very light as the pseudorabies outbreak from several months ago still prohibits inter-stating pigs. Slaughter pigs weighing from 18-28 lbs sold sharply higher in active bidding, with all other classes of slaughter pigs trending firm to 5.00 higher. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
November 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was fair at best and noted as typical of midweek trading as dealers remained cautious and selective during this seasonally sluggish period. Offerings of bone-in breasts were fully adequate and discounted to stimulate interest. Boneless-skinless breasts were available.

Dark meat cuts were at least sufficient. Wings were moving into a better balanced position. Retail and distributive draw was limited. The market tone was fully steady to instances firm on wings, barely steady to weak on bone-in breasts, and about steady on the balance.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 18–24, 2002

FULL BEAVER MOON, NOV. 19

PINECONES AND WHITE BIRCH

These fall days are ideal for gathering the large pinecones that make great winter kindling for the fireplace. Dip them in scented wax for a colorful and fragrant fire. Cut a stack of beautiful white-birch logs for a decorative laying of the fire. Drill candle-diameter holes in the length of a small birch log to make a holiday centerpiece for the table. Embellish with some pine boughs and small pinecones, tuck in some colorful straw flowers for Thanksgiving, or add small gold balls and a red ribbon for the December holidays. Insert candles and enjoy!

Not what we give, but what we share, for the gift without the giver is bare.

–James Russell Lowell, American poet and essayist (1819–1891)

Lancaster Farming OPINION

Editor's note for all Guest Editorials: Please keep in mind that the opinions of the writers don't necessarily agree with the editor's. For the benefit of our diverse readership, we strive to provide a balance of opinion in Lancaster Farming.

Guest Editorial By
Senator Noah W. Wenger
36th Senatorial District
Lancaster and Chester Counties
Senate Majority Caucus Chairman
Vice Chairman of the Senate Agriculture And Rural Affairs Committee

Recently, there has been much discussion regarding Senate Bill 1413 in this publication as well as other media outlets around the commonwealth. Many of the positions expressed attempt to "formidably instruct" readers as to why this bill is "so dangerous to the democratic process." Additionally, these opponents are claiming that this legislation is dangerous because it seeks to destroy "family farms" and "strip local control."

The leaders and catalysts of those opposing SB 1413 claim they are here to defend agriculture and will use any tactics to see the defeat of this legislation.

Well, I would love to spend the next several paragraphs refuting these claims and reemphasizing the fact that this legislation would not even be necessary if there were not several local governments here in the commonwealth that have decided to ignore the democratic process and pass ordinances that directly violate state law. I would love to task the reader to sit down and write a definition of a family farm. What is it?

If everyone who reads this would send in their definition, I venture to say I would get as many diverse definitions as Pennsylvania is diverse in our agriculture economy. Family farms come in all shapes, sizes, colors, and successfulness. I think a family farm is a family that

To Continue To Conserve Water

Gov. Mark Schweiker reduced the drought emergency declaration for Lancaster County to a drought warning recently. However, we still have a serious rainfall deficit and we are a long way from replenishing our groundwater supplies.

In October we had 6.36 inches of rain, 3.36 inches above normal. For 2002 this still leaves rainfall 8.40 inches below normal. More serious is the cumulative rainfall deficit over the last five seasons. Going back to January 1998, Lancaster County has suffered a rainfall deficit of 42.16 inches. Forty-three of the last 60 months have been below normal in rainfall.

Surface water flows have improved with the recent rains. On Nov. 4, the Susquehanna River at Safe Harbor had a flow rate of 23,000 cubic feet per second (cfs) compared to a seasonal normal of 28,900 cfs. The Conestoga River at Lancaster was above the seasonal normal of 209 cfs with a flow rate of 287 cfs.

Surface water flow rates tend to respond more quickly to rains than groundwater levels but they drop more quickly as well after the storm flow passes. So while we are no longer under a drought emergency, we need to continue to work hard to reduce water consumption in every aspect of our operation.

To Clean Up Waste Plastic On Our Farms

Before the weather turns colder we have an opportunity to pull up any remaining plastic mulch in our fields and recycle it.

This is a good time to clean up other waste plastic on the farm, including bale wrap, silage bags, trench silo covers, plastic mulch in horticultural production, and shrink-wrap for palletized supplies.

Burning this waste plastic in open fires is an unacceptable disposal method since it creates a tremendous amount of pollution both as particulate matter in the smoke and as petroleum by-products left by this low temperature burning.

This material is again being collected and baled in Lancaster County for use in the production of plastic lumber. The bales of recycled plastic material will be hauled to the Trex company factory in Virginia for this purpose. There it will be mixed with waste wood chips and sawdust to produce a product for use in plastic decking.

The waste material is being collected at the Dan Zook farm at 183 South Farmersville Road in Leola. Any polyethylene product will be accepted, which includes plastic mulch, agricultural plastic bags, bale wrap, silage covers, greenhouse covers, and shrink-wrap. Materials that are not acceptable include plastic twine, row covers, molded plastic such as greenhouse trays and pots, milk jugs, and pesticide or other containers.

A $30-per-ton tipping fee will be collected when the material is delivered to the farm. This is less than half of what it would cost to take the material to the municipal incinerator in Lancaster County.

If you have a collection of waste plastic, take the time to remove it while the opportunity is still available. Call Dan Zook at (717) 656-4422 to make arrangements before delivering your material. This will insure you can be unloaded in a quick and efficient manner, saving time for all.

To Enroll In The New Crop Insurance Plan Called AGR-Lite

Most producers across Pennsylvania will have the opportunity to buy total farm revenue protection for 2003. The new pilot insurance plan, named Adjusted Gross Revenue-Lite (AGR-Lite for short), has the potential of providing meaningful crop insurance protection for virtually all kinds of crop and animal production for the vast majority of Pennsylvania's 59,000 producers.

The plan was developed by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) and approved as a new insurance plan by the USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation Oct. 22. This is a new opportunity for Pennsylvania producers, which was the result of cooperation between PDA and USDA according to PDA Secretary Sam Hayes Jr.

Under this plan, all crops and animal production including by-products (that is, milk production) can be protected with one policy and only one set of historical records (as opposed to writing a policy and coming up with actual production history records for each crop). This increased simplicity will make it easier for producers to understand their options and improve enrollment decisions. The policy is limited to a maximum protection of $100,000 annually; therefore, the target market will be to farms with a five-year average of $200,000 or less of gross sales.

AGR-Lite premiums will be reduced significantly by cost-sharing funds from USDA and the Pennsylvania state crop insurance assistance grants that pay 100 percent of the fee and about 20 percent of the producer's net premium.

Whole farm coverage will make the producers more credit worthy because many lenders will recognize the increased loan security of an assignment of loss proceeds of this plan.

Enrollment deadline is Jan. 31, 2003. Purchase will be made through approved insurance agents. However, producers are reminded that program details to make individual quotes are not expected to be available before early December, because this is a new program. More producer information will be made available as details are finalized.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

First let me say that I am a member of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA). This is the organization that Brian Snyder is the executive director of.

I am proud of my association with this organization.

Second, let me also say I am a farmer whose only source of family income is from the farm. We live in an area that is changing dramatically and expansion of the farm to include my children is seemingly hopeless.

Somedays I think we should have a billboard erected that says, "Beware — This is a real farm." So I can understand and respect the positions offered by Walt Peechatka.

Thirdly and most important — I am a member of my community. I have a vested interest in all the development that occurs here and the effect that it will have on the quality of life in my community. Two important factors in the quality of life include clean air and water. I am not willing to sacrifice the loss or risk that potential loss to the expansion of

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHOSE FAULT?

Background Scripture:
Ezekiel 18.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 6:17-23.

The book of Ezekiel is an ancient text, but the problem in chapter 18 is very contemporary. In Exodus 20:5, God says to Moses: "...for I the Lord your God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and the fourth generation of those who hate me, but showing steadfast love to thousands of those who love me and keep my commandments."

In Ezekiel 18:20, God says through the prophet: "The soul that sins shall die. The son shall not suffer for the iniquity of the father, nor the father suffer for the iniquity of the son; the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon himself, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself."

For generations, the Hebrews, largely on the basis of Exodus 20:5, believed that the sons of several generations would have to suffer for the sins of their father. But Ezekiel was saying that the reverse was true: sons shall not suffer for the sins of their parents, nor parents for the sins of their children. Which represents the mind of God?

Not Which, But Both

I believe that we might say that both represent God's word to us. We know with a certainty that one generation may have to suffer because of the deeds of a previous one. A child born out of wedlock may suffer because of the act of his mother and father.

If you are brought up in the home of an alcoholic, it cannot help but shape your life. These, and many more, are the natural consequences of the way we live and the things we do. The child of the alcoholic suffers, not because God has imposed a punishment, but because the alcoholic parent has poisoned his or her family life.

The problem with thus attributing our present circumstances is that it breeds irresponsibility. Sometimes you hear, "I am what I am because someone else made me this way." That is one of our problems today: no one ever seems responsible for anything. When did you last hear anyone say, "I was absolutely wrong and I take full responsibility"?

At the same time, we also know that it is unthinkable to us to believe that God will punish the unborn for the sins of a parent. There may be natural consequences to what the parent does, but the relationship between God and the offspring will not be damaged. God will not hold the offspring accountable for the sins of a previous generation.. That would be unfair.

Is God Fair?

Ezekiel is helping us to see this problem from the perspective of paradox: two apparently conflicting perspectives on the truth, both of which must be acknowledged. Remember that there are often natural consequences of what we do and say and very often God does not spare us those consequences — although we can always count on him to see them through. At the same time, we are responsible for ourselves alone in our relationship with the Lord.

In other words, we may have to pay a price for the sins of our parents or others, but maintain a saving relationship with the Lord. Ezekiel lays it out clearly:

1. The righteous person shall live by God's grace (18:5-9).

2. The wicked offspring of the righteous parents shall die (18:10-13).

3. The righteous son of the wicked son shall live (18:14-20).

4. The wicked man who becomes righteous shall live (18:21-24).

This is probably the best news of all, for it means it is never too late for us to take responsibility for ourselves, repent, turn, and live righteously. If we turn to God, we are not only free of our family past, but of our own.

If there is something wrong with our lives, the acts of our forebears may have set us on a particular road, but we cannot blame them because nothing keeps us on the wrong road but ourselves. Ultimately, it is our fault, but also our opportunity to let God transform our lives.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
November 13, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3244-1.4247. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3444-1.4448 mostly 1.3645-1.4046.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9850-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - .8700-.9400.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - 130, Out 0; last week - In 95, Out 0; last year - In 26, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 35, Out 0.

This week, some deadly storms raced through large areas of the East. In their wake, homes and businesses were destroyed and power was lost in some locales. According to contacts, the disruption to the milk industry was less than expected, but the effects of the damage and losses will be felt for along time.

Milk production is steady in most parts of the region. Gains seen in the Southeast during the past week or two have slowed. In Florida, milk output is about steady. In the Northeast, the milk flow is at or near the low point in its annual cycle. Fluid milk sales are in a wide range of good to mostly fair. Bottlers do feel that orders will pick up next week for Thanksgiving. Florida's need for milk increased this week as sales are increasing slightly as more "winter residents" move in. Manufacturing plants have plenty of capacity to handle any extra milk that may be available during the holiday week. In a few scattered instances, plants did have a little more surplus milk to process, but this was most often a result of other plants being down for repairs.

The condensed skim market is holding up quite well. Spot sales are scattered, but contract loads are clearing nicely. Some Eastern wet solids are moving to the Midwest on contract and keeping local drying schedules light. Usage in cheese making is mixed this week.

The fluid cream market ranges from steady to firmer. Supplies are balanced to slightly long after mid-week, but reported as very tight early this week. Some contacts note that supplies early this week have not been as tight in over a year. Demand was very good early, fair to good late. Spot prices are generally lower following the nearly three-cent drop in the CME butter average. However, multiples were generally steady, but often higher within the range. Cream cheese output is holding up at strong, seasonal levels. Production of sour cream, dips, and bottled cream are all at typical pre-holiday levels. Egg nog production is in full swing and absorbing more cream. Ice cream production is seasonal, but many plants are running fairly full. This may be because many will be down for Thanksgiving week and they are building stocks to cover deliveries during that period. Churning activity is up slightly as some producers did go looking for more cream during this past weekend.

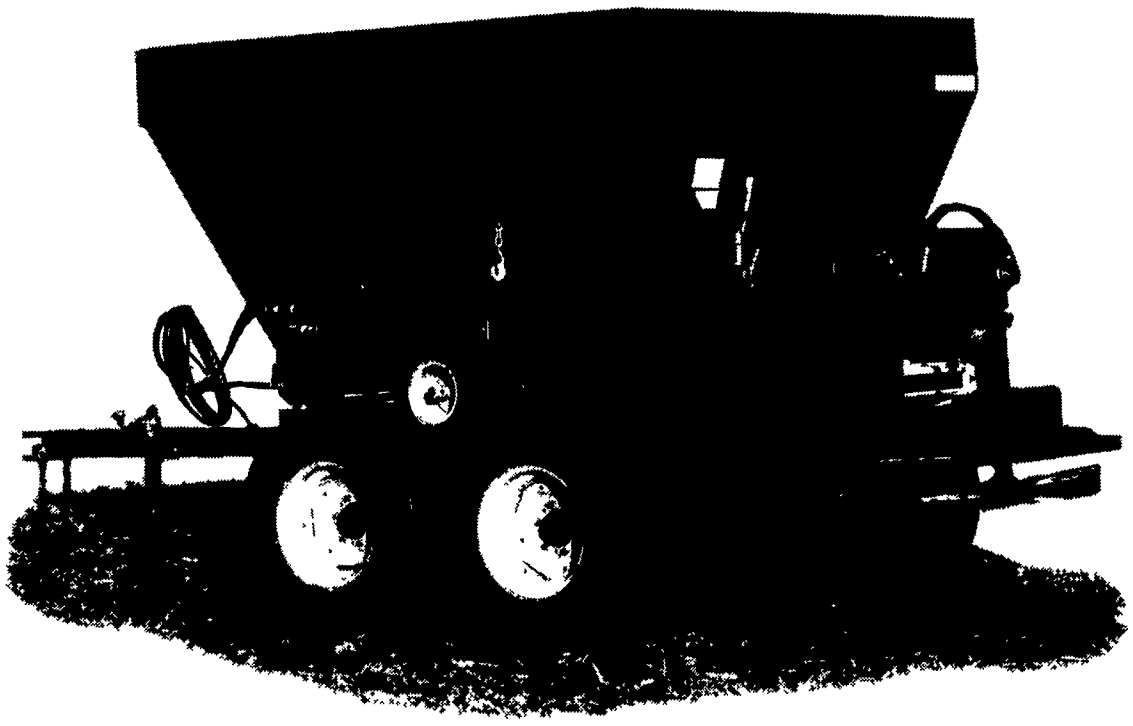
It's Time To Lime!



You know how tough it is to spread wet lime. And fertilizer is too expensive to waste. Our new 56i spreader does both jobs with ease. Plus, it has no equal when it comes to spreading "sloppy" material.

Stoltzfus Spreaders have been known as unique, "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders since 1947.

Farmers are still using Stoltzfus Spreaders they've had 20 years or more. That means your investment in a versatile Stoltzfus Spreader will add up to a very smart buy indeed.

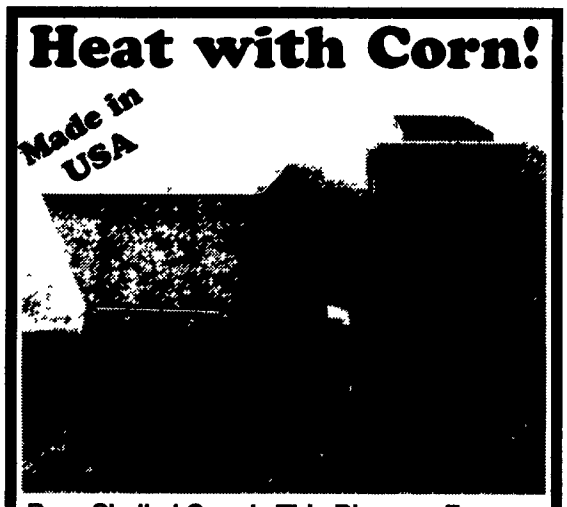
Heat with Corn!



Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
November 8, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending Nov. 8, 2002. Total Receipts: 346,900, last week 426,600. Direct: 66,100, last week 62,300. Video/Internet: 3,500 head, last week 26,200. Auction Receipts: 277,300; last week 338,100. This week's reported auction volume included only 25 percent over 600 lbs and 42 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, yearling feeder steers and heifers sold firm to 1.00 higher in a light test. Steer and heifer calves traded steady to 2.00 higher, with the Southern Plains and the Southeast markets turning sharply higher at midweek. Sunshine and dry weather in the wheat grazing areas rejuvenated stocker interest, after three weeks of miserable damp and cold conditions. Wheat pastures have been too wet to turn cattle out as they would only tromp-out all of their groceries and stand in the mud, shivering. Now, backgrounders should be able to get their stock out of the soupy pens at the growing yard and get them on the lush pastures that this week's weather has created. Health conditions should improve as these cattle are given some room to stretch their legs and removed from the disease that accumulates in cramped corrals. Death loss over the last few weeks in the High Plains has been devastating, with many outfits reporting percentages in the double digits. Demand for ranch calves in the Mountain States and Northern Plains was very good this week as Midwest farmer feeders are done with harvest and ready for cattle. Trading was also active in the Great Northwest with over 14,000 head of direct trade reported from Washington, Oregon, and Idaho. Yearlings continue to be in short supply and in many areas a 750 lb yearling will bring as much per pound as a 550 lb calf. The fat cattle market continues to push its way toward 70.00 and the CME Futures are quoting prices in the mid-seventies for this winter. It's hard to imagine, but feeders and backgrounders both have a real chance to hit a lick this year. These chances don't come along very often and most folks are nervously waiting for a rough winter to extinguish their hope. After a drought stricken summer and an abnormally wet and cold early-fall, maybe we'll get a break.

Meeting To Focus On Ag's Future

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania's food producers will be talking about how the regulation of farms by some townships will affect the future of agriculture in the commonwealth when farmers from across the state gather in Hershey Nov. 18-20 for the 52nd annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

"The action by several townships to impose new restrictions on agriculture creates dark clouds for farm families across the commonwealth," said Pennsylvania Farm Bureau President Guy F. Donaldson. "The matter is sure to generate plenty of discussion when our members get together in Hershey."

Voting delegates from the state Farm Bureau's 54 county units will be electing leaders and setting policies for the statewide farm group during the upcoming annual meeting. Grassroots policy suggestions that originated in the county Farm Bureaus will be discussed and debated by the delegates in deciding the organization's official stance on a wide range of issues affecting agriculture.

In addition to setting policy, the annual meeting will provide a stage for the presentation of awards honoring achievements by county Farm Bureaus, young farmers, and individuals who have performed distinguished service to agriculture.

Judge Says Beef Checkoff Constitutional

LMA Responds

BILLINGS, Mont. — U.S. District Court Judge Richard Cebull Oct. 28 reaffirmed the constitutionality of the beef checkoff with his ruling in a suit brought by Steve and Jeanne Charter and various other cattle producers.

The judge's ruling declares the Beef Promotion and Research Act constitutional and notes that speech compelled by the act "constitutes support for government speech."

The ruling directs that judgment be entered in favor of USDA, on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board, and requires the Charters to remit unpaid assessments and late fees.

"Obviously, we are thrilled with Judge Cebull's decision," said Cattlemen's Beef Board Chairman Dee Lacey. "It reaffirms what other cases have concluded repeatedly through the years — that the beef checkoff is constitutional."

The District Judge in Billings, Mont. issued the ruling in favor of the defendants — the USDA and a group of producers — based on his review of the record in the case, as well as the transcripts in the Livestock Marketing Association's lawsuit against the checkoff.

In that South Dakota suit, now under consideration by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in Minneapolis, LMA similarly challenged the constitutionality of the Beef Checkoff Program.

The Charter case originated as a compliance issue in 1998, when Montana ranchers Steve and Jeanne Charter refused to pay the mandated $1-per-head beef checkoff. A USDA administrative law judge enforced the checkoff and assessed a civil penalty.

Upon further review by the USDA's judicial officer, at the bequest of the Charters, assessments of those penalties were upheld.

The Charters then chose to appeal their case to the Federal District Court in Billings, based on the 2001 United Foods case. Defendants in the case include the USDA and a group of producers who intervened on behalf of the checkoff.

A link to the decision is posted on the beefboard.org Web site.

LMA Response

On its website, the Livestock Marketing Association posted the following:

Judge Cebull ruled, "The Secretary of Agriculture, by way of his staff, controls the checkoff-funded speech. Therefore, the speech must be attributed to the government...the Beef Board is a representative of the government."

...LMA officials noted that three federal district courts have ruled on the beef and pork checkoffs in the last five months, and two have found that both checkoffs are not government speech and are unconstitutional. LMA remains confident that its challenge to the beef checkoff, now on appeal to the 8th Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, will prevail.

As to whether the checkoffis government speech, according to Beef Board CEO Monte Reese, that is the way beef producers designed the program. Government oversight was there from day one, he is quoted as saying this week in a national industry newsletter.

For example, in the pork checkoff, Michigan Federal District Court Judge Richard A. Enslen ruled that pork checkoff unconstitutional in his Oct. 25 decision.

He also struck down the government claim that the pork checkoff is "government speech," and thus not subject to the First Amendment.

Following is excerpts from the Department of Justice's brief.

"There is no question that the Secretary remains ultimately responsible for the content of the speech generated though the beef checkoff program, acting as the final arbiter of what speech will be permitted." (P. 19).

"The fact that producers pay the assessment does not mean that they, and not the Secretary, bear ultimate responsibility for the speech. Those producers pay assessments required by the government and collected either by or at the direction of the government, facing a government action if they do not comply." (P. 19)

"To the extent the (Beef) Board and the Operating Committee represent cattle producers, they play an important role in proposing, developing and approving checkoff-funded projects. But the Secretary retains ultimate authority over every project funded with checkoff dollars." (P. 20).

Open House Shows Growth, Milk Testing Process

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Hundreds of farm families toured Lancaster County DHIA testing labs during its open house this week.

Many expressed amazement that only two seconds are required to test samples for fat, protein, solids, and lactose. Some farmers remembered the "old" days when milk testers stayed overnight at farms and calculated records by hand.

While visitors expressed astonishment at the testing process, Jay Mylin, manager of the association, said he, himself is in awe of how much has changed in the past 10 years.

"It has outgrew my vision," Mylin said. It started with 58,000 cows and has grown to 150,000 processed monthly. The service area covers 30 counties in Pennsylvania and several counties in northern Maryland.

To better serve farmers, the Lancaster County DHIA broke away from the Pennsylvania DHIA in Oct. 1, 1992. They became affiliated with Raleigh Daily Record Processing Center (RDRPC), which continues to provide processing records. The Manheim office transmits lab testing results to RDRPC, which uses its software to configure management data reports.

In the beginning, Mylin's poultry house on his family farm was remodeled to serve as the county's headquarters. Since then, the building has been expanded and remodeled several times.

"Ten years ago, we didn't have a lab. We sent samples to Maryland DHIA for testing," Mylin said.

Installing a lab not only enabled the organization to cut costs but also enabled farmers to receive testing results in half the time.

Jay Mylin, manager of Lancaster County DHIA, tells how the organization has grown during its 10-year history, from testing 58,000 cows to 150,000 monthly.

The building houses offices, lab, clean-up and chemical preparation, shipping, data center, meter lab, and conference room.

Mylin said the lab can turn out 700 samples per hour with two lines of equipment. The most the lab ever processed in one day was 9,800 samples.

A "recipe book" includes the formulas needed to prepare chemicals for testing. The five lab technicians change duties off and on throughout the day to prevent monotony.

Looking almost out of place next to the computerized equipment are a standard household clothes washer and dryer. The washer and dryer are used for sanitizing the vials and caps before preparing them to be reused.

Samples are delivered by U.S. Mail, United Postal Service, and by technicians who drop off samples.

Mylin credits the organization's growth to a great group of employees — 55 are on the payroll — and to the dairy people they serve.

Ruth Lohr explains that completed samples are emptied into a holding tank and spread on fields. The vials and lids are sanitized in a washing machine and ready to be reused.

The most difficult challenge for Mylin is seeing the stress dairy farmers face from the economy, government regulations, time and workload.

"We want to do all we can to help dairy farmers, and to keep good folks on family farms," he said. "Our emphasis is on service."

Sollenberger Silos Corp. A Farm Show Landmark For Farmers

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Sollenberger Silos Corporation has been a continuous presence at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for the last 20 years.

"We're really excited about the new and improved Farm Show," said Bob Francis, sales manager. "The biggest thing that we're excited about is the Farmer Days. I think that will really concentrate the farmers those three days.

"The Farm Show keeps us in touch with farmers in primarily Pennsylvania but also out-of-state farmers I think that's going to increase with the emphasis on the new facilities and Farmer Days," he said.

The history of the event is important, according to Fred Bull, general manager. "There is a lot of tradition and we feel that we're a landmark. We're a part of the tradition. Farmers look for us," he said.

"It comes at a good time of year," said Bull. "During the dark days of January, it's nice to have a place to meet with your customers."

The business keeps records of good leads, and "every year we still get more out of the Farm Show than any other show," said Francis.

The event, besides being valuable for the business, is enjoyable for employees. "I was raised on a farm and understand and know farmers, so I enjoy talking and listening to farmers," said Francis.

The camaraderie of the farmers attending the Farm Show is part of what makes the event enjoyable, he said.

Sollenberger Silos Corporation, founded by Avery Sollenberger, has been in business since 1908. The company changed hands in 1982 when it was purchased by Craig Nitterhouse.

"Craig wanted to touch the farmers, to be where they were. He realized the importance of exhibiting at a farm show and he's been really supportive ever since," said Francis.

The corporation will take six employees — three will staff the booth during most of the event — to answer questions and talk to farmers.

The 20-foot area will include a video showing silo construction and display boards with large pictures, besides informational literature.

"It takes more than one visit to sell a major item," said Francis. The Farm Show, however, provides leads to follow up before spring, he said.

Francis, who has conducted many seminars on the East Coast, is planning to do a seminar about the company's tower silos for corn silage storage. The silos are equipped with an elevated floor to allow for vehicle drive-through for unloading.

"I've been in education since I was out of college," he said. "I believe in education before selling.

"We'll spend an hour with them (farmers) talking about how to meet their needs. That's pure education," said Francis.

He is planning a trip to Harrisburg with sales representatives to finalize plans.

The business also builds concrete tower silos for wireless communications. Cellular antennas are mounted outside of the silo or inside the silo wall.

Since the business also does work for industrial, not necessarily agricultural, businesses, the Farm Show also allows exposure to the nonfarm public, said Francis.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
November 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids were mostly higher after Tuesday's sharp plunge as traders made some corrections. Light overnight export orders offered some support to wheat. Crop ratings for wheat improved from a week ago and winter wheat seeding is 92 percent complete. Corn bids were slightly higher again as good overnight export sales and indications this years harvest will be lower than expected, boosted bids. Corn is 86 percent harvested while soybeans are at 91 percent complete. Soybean's also enjoyed some overnight export interest, but not enough to bring bids out of Tuesday's slump. Farmer selling has increased this week as truck are seen lined up outside Elevators. Wheat 7 to 14 cents higher except Portland 7 to 10 cents lower. Corn 2 to 6 cents higher. Sorghum 4 cents higher. Soybeans steady to 3 cents lower.

Conference Examines Keys

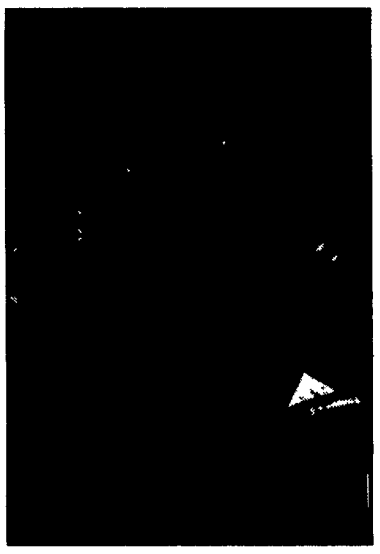
the connection between unhealthy teats and dollar losses, dairy farmers are well aware of the value in keeping mastitis in check and SCC counts down.

The evaluation system outlined by Jayarao involves close examination of teats after milking for the teats' skin condition, color, degree of swelling, hardness at teat end, openness of the orifice, and teat end scoring.

Knowing how to identify problems at the end of the teat is especially crucial. Irritation at the teat end causes swelling and creates a rough ring around the orifice — the opening to the canal. This rough ring can harbor bacteria. At times, the orifice may even fail to close, allowing bacteria easy access to the teat canal.

Dryness of the teat skin, open lesions, and a red, blue, or darker color are also indicators of poor teat condition.

In contrast, "A normal teat has a smooth sheen and soft, healthy skin," Jayarao said.



Dr. Bhushan Jayarao discusses the importance of evaluating teat end conditions at the milk quality conference Wednesday.

For dairy managers with 80 cows or less, Jayarao recommended they evaluate teats for the whole herd. Those with herds of 80-400 should score random samples of at last 80 cows, and those with more than 400 in the herd should score at least 20 percent of the cows, he said.

Poor scores in specific areas of the evaluation can help indicate the cause of the poor teat health. Penn State provides a chart to help determine this. Causes are divided into two main categories: A) those associated with milking machine faults or poor milking management, and B) those associated with a poor environment, poor herd management, or chemical irritation factors.

Jayarao also discussed the various infectious lesions that can occur on teats. These can be caused by bacteria, viruses, or fungi. Bacterial infections are the most prevalent of the three and have much more impact on dairy economics, he said. Severe teat end lesions are associated with subclinical mastitis and bacterial colonization.

The conference also featured other speakers on topics related to teat health. Dr. Steve Nickerson of Virginia Polytech spoke on teat end hygiene; Steve Spencer of Spencer Consulting on teat end health as related to milking systems; Dr. Winston Ingalls, West Agro, Inc. on cleaning milking systems; and Dave Wolfgang on cow environment impacts on on teat end hygiene.

A representative of Zinpro Corporation also spoke on the importance of good nutrition, including the need for adequate and balanced trace mineral supplements to promote udder health and prevent problems such as mastitis. Studies have shown that cows are most prone to teat infections just prior to calving, he said.

Tom Angstadt of Dairylea Cooperative was keynote speaker for the day.

Dr. Diamond Reviews Carbon County Fair Sheep Entries

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) The 4-H market lamb and 4-H and open breeding sheep shows were recently conducted at the Carbon County Fair, east of Palmerton.

Dr. James Diamond, Dean of Agriculture and Environmental Sciences at Delaware Valley College, judged the event. A breeder of Suffolk sheep, Dr. Diamond served over 10 years on the faculty of Penn State College of ag education, has done international work through Cooperative Extension in developing nations, and was a former vo-ag teacher at Upper Bucks Vo-Tech School.

In judging the fitting and showmanship competition of the 4-H market lamb show Diamond, keeping with his educational background, occasionally stopped to give instruction and explanations to the exhibitors and spectators. Two points he stressed in showmanship were to always have the sheep between you and the judge and that the exhibitor must always know where the judge is. As his champion fitter, Diamond selected Ashley Barry from the senior division. Reserve fitter honors went to Christiana Graver, who first topped the intermediate division. Graver, 12, is the daughter of Paul and Diane Graver and is a seventh-grade student at Lehighton Middle School. She has started her own flock of breeding sheep and also completed the dairy beef and market swine projects this year. Although she does well with her other project animals she will readily admit that the swine she raises each year for competition at the local fair and the Pennsylvania Farm Show are her favorite. Graver is serving as the news reporter for the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club.

Barry was then selected as the champion showman of the market lamb show followed by Laura Mazur, 13, daughter of Diane Fisher, as reserve champion showman.

Barry, 16, a junior at Lehighton High School, is the daughter of Guy and Priscilla Barry and secretary-treasurer of the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club where she also completed the market goat and dairy beef projects.

Moving into the weight classes Diamond said, "In market lambs you want to find high quality carcasses." Diamond selected his grand champion market lamb from the heavy medium weight class. The champion exhibited by Barry weighed 117 pounds and was described as being more desirable and firmer than the competition. The reserve champion market lamb ribbon was then presented to Luke Graver, 10, a second-year member for his 125-pound first-place winner of the heavyweight class. Luke, brother of Christiana Graver, is in the fifth grade at Lehighton Middle School. Luke also completed the dairy beef and market swine projects this year and will be again competing in the market swine competition at the Pennsylvania Farm Show this January.

As his champion fitter in the 4-H breeding sheep competition Diamond selected Mazur following with Christiana Graver as his choice for reserve champion fitter. Champion showman honors went to Barry who was earlier selected as the champion showman and fitter of the market lamb contest. Diamond then awarded the reserve champion showman honors to Mazur.

In the 4-H and open breeding sheep show Diamond reviewed the approximately 50 entries selecting the Dorset ewe lamb, BLS 205 "Buttercup" of Luke Graver as the grand champion Dorset ewe. This animal of Graver then went on to be named the supreme champion ewe of the show being described as the animal that was most true to the breed characteristics established by the breed association.

Christiana Graver then followed as her Feb. 2002 bred and owned Hampshire ewe was selected as the grand champion Hampshire ewe by Diamond. Reserve grand champion Hampshire ewe honors went to the March 2001 ewe of Barry. Grand champion Hampshire ram honors were then awarded to Christiana Graver.

The audience for the evening show was treated to a large sheep show having several breeds represented, at times with as many as six pairs in the ring at one time. As the evening progressed, avid sheep breeder and 4-H member Laura Mazur collected the following championships in the 4-H and open breeding sheep show: grand and reserve Shropshire ewes and rams; grand champion Suffolk ewe and ram; grand and reserve champion Montadale ewes and rams; and grand champion Karakul ewe and ram.

Mazur is currently the youth ambassador for the Karakul breed, a rare and ancient bred of sheep. She will have several of her sheep representing rare breeds at the Small Farm and Rural Living Expo in September. More information on the Small Farm Expo schedule and location can be found on their Website: www.smallfarmexpo.org or in recent issues of Lancaster Farming.

Drought Emergency Lifted In 16 Counties

Cumberland, Chester, Delaware Counties Remain In Drought Emergency

PHILADELPHIA — Gov. Mark Schweiker recently lifted the drought emergency for 16 counties, while continuing the drought emergency in Cumberland, Chester and Delaware counties.

"We are thankful that October's rainfall was above normal in some areas of southeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania," Gov. Schweiker said. "What we have to remember now is that this drought was years in the making, and we still need to practice water conservation, especially in the three counties where the drought emergency has been extended."

Northampton, Lehigh, Berks, Bucks, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Lancaster and York counties have been upgraded to drought-warning status, which calls on residents to voluntarily conserve 10 percent to 15 percent of their daily water usage.

Dauphin, Lebanon, Bedford, Fulton, Franklin and Adams counties been upgraded to drought-watch status, which calls on residents to voluntarily conserve 5 percent of their daily water use.

Perry and Schuylkill counties have been upgraded to normal status.

Because Cumberland, Chester and Delaware counties remain in drought-emergency status, residents there continue to be under mandatory water-use restrictions. Groundwater level remains a problem in these three counties and is the deciding factor in keeping them in drought-emergency status.

Gov. Schweiker first declared a drought emergency on February 12, for 24 counties in southcentral and eastern Pennsylvania. He extended the emergency for 20 counties on May 8, extended the emergency for 14 counties on August 9, and then added five counties to drought emergency status on September 5 after a long dry spell.

"While our rainfall for the past few weeks has been excellent, we'll need several more months of above average rainfall to return all of our counties to normal status," Gov. Schweiker said.

For more information, including a color-coded map to show the drought status of each Pennsylvania county, visit the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "drought."

MPCs

and Resource Economics Review.

MPC is a protein product derived from milk using a new membrane technology called "ultra filtration," in which protein molecules are separated from water, lactose, and minerals. The resulting dried protein is popular with processors of dairy foods such as ice cream and cheese, as well as with the rapidly growing nutritional foods industry.

"Dairy farmers across the country are upset that MPC imports are entering the country with few or no tariffs and are being used in cheese production," said Bailey. "Right now, imported MPCs are much cheaper than domestically produced nonfat dry milk. Surplus nonfat dry milk not consumed domestically is purchased by the USDA under the dairy price support program."

The USDA has 1.15 billion pounds of nonfat dry milk in government storage, up 78 percent from a year ago. The surplus is expected to grow in 2003.

During the most recent World Trade Organization negotiations, the U.S. and other countries agreed to establish a system of tiered tariffs on dairy products. Within a certain quota amount, tariffs on dairy products are at one level. Beyond the quota amount, tariffs rise significantly. As a result, some imported dairy products, such as cheese and butter, have relatively high tariffs placed on them.

MPCs, however, were not commercially available during the negotiations and therefore were not subjected to the same import controls. Bailey says some farmers consider this a trade loophole.

Bailey's study found that:

• MPC substitutes to some degree for domestically produced nonfat dry milk (dried skim milk). While it is not a one-for-one trade, domestic consumption of nonfat dry milk fell whenever imports of MPC increased. "That is the case this year," Bailey said. "MPC imports were up 27 percent in the first eight months of 2002 relative to the same period a year ago, and domestic consumption of nonfat dry milk was down 26 percent."

• MPC imports grew whenever the world price of nonfat dry milk fell below the U.S. domestic price, creating an economic advantage to importers. Currently, world prices of nonfat dry milk are about 55 to 62 cents per pound, compared to the USDA support price of 90 cents per pound. This partially explains why MPC imports this year are so strong.

• Not all of the MPC imports are responsive to changes in global prices. Bailey estimates that about half the imports of MPC have noth-

Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging Team To Represent Pa.

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging team will represent Pennsylvania in the National 4-H Livestock Judging Contest in Louisville, Kentucky on Nov. 19.

Only one county 4-H team from each state— the team that wins at state competition — goes on to nationals.

Sarah Nolt, New Holland, a junior at Garden Spot High School, has been participating on the 4-H judging team since she was a freshman in high school.

She has shown steers since she was in fourth grade for 4-H. She entered the sheep ring for the first time this year with sheep in FFA competition.

A nearby cattle producers, Fred Weaver, helped her get started not only in showing cattle but also judging livestock. With additional encouragement from Chet Hughes and a few 4-H meetings, she attended Block and Bridle, a small judging contest at Penn State. "I enjoyed it and that got me interested in it," she said.

Through the judging program Nolt has "learned how to give reasons and a lot of terminology on the different types of livestock.

Previously, Nolt "was only really familiar with cattle, and through this I got to know more about swine and sheep.

"It helps me out with a lot of leadership skills," she said. "Getting in front of judges to give reasons was really hard for me at first. I'm slowly growing out of it."

Nolt plans on going to a two-year school to become a medical assistant.

Ryan Donough, Manheim, who works in foodservice at a retirement community, is in his eleventh and last year in 4-H. He has shown sheep, cattle, and pigs over the years.

Additionally, he participated on the livestock judging team for three years after taking a hiatus from earlier participation as a young 4-Her.

According to Donough, the team tried to practice weekly from spring until July, when the contest was conducted, and continued weekly practices after that. "A lot of it (practice) is looking at mock classes, taking notes and practicing reasons, and getting critiqued and suggestions by the coach," said Donough.

Derick Bollinger, Manheim, a freshman large animal science major at Delaware Valley College, has been judging livestock for five years, besides competing on the meats judging team for three years.

He has exhibited market lambs, breeding sheep, market swine, and steers during his 4-H and FFA career.

Donough and Bollinger were in Louisville recently for national FFA convention, competing in the FFA livestock judging contest. Along with teammates Adam Zurin and Cliff Wetzel the team placed 18th out of 46 teams.

The team recently practiced judging Angus cattle at the Fred Frey family's cattle operation near Quarryville and at the Van Binkley family's Dorset sheep flock near Conestoga in preparation for their trip to Kentucky.

Branded Pennsylvania Beef Product On Horizon

program, in conjunction with money from the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

The concept of the labeled product in Pennsylvania meatcases has been evolving since the program took life in summer 2001.

"Even though it has been and still is a dream of sorts, we can now begin to visualize the Beef Quality Assurance program label on our product," said Paul Slayton, Pennsylvania Beef Council executive director.

The effort is a joint effort by the commission; Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) staff; the marketing firm CMB Victory, a business based in Hampton, N.H., and the Pennsylvania certified beef producers.

Once a plan is formalized, a 30-second advertisement will be produced and distributed to key meat buyers and specialty store owners. Stores that carry the labeled product will have their names added to the spot in their area.

Later, an advertisement will run on cable television in targeted areas.

Christine Bushway, CMB Victory representative who has extended experience with the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program, will be assisting by coordinating the consumer marketing component to the program.

"I do know that the demand for locally-produced anything is just growing and growing," said Bushway. Whole sections of grocery stores are devoted to regionally produced foods — a response to food safety and national security issues, she said.

Consumer education is priority, according to Bushway. "The consumer needs to know about it (the quality assurance program). That's what's going to make your product valuable to them," she said.

The commission plans to conduct a pilot project before beginning a full-scale effort.

"We're hoping to start small so we can coordinate and control everything," said Slayton. "If there is going to be a lot of problems, we can figure out where the glitches are going to be before we roll it out on a massive scale.

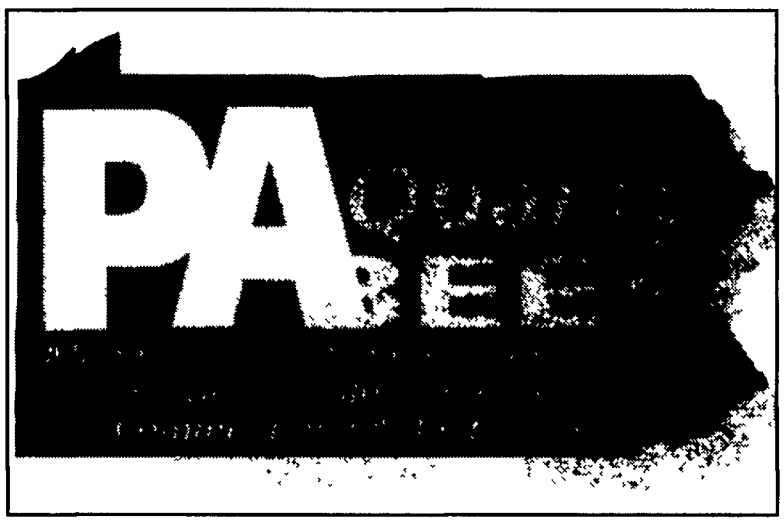
"We hope that the pilot project will enable us to do geographic marketing in a small community or a small focus group that we can build a success story from — that we built demand by adding value and then providing supply."

"With a pilot project, ultimately what we would hope to accomplish," said Bushway, "would be to prove that a value-added product will result in a higher price or more demand for the meat.

Determining supply and establishing a means of separating Pennsylvania BQA cattle are two points of discussion.

"We will have hurdles," said Bushway, who urged the commission not to be overly concerned about "how you're going to get over them. I understand you have concerns but once we get moving, we will figure it out. If we keep moving forward, know that you'll jump them (the obstacles) when you get there."

"Quality Assurance programs for food are a relatively new innovation," she said. "As things stand now, you have the marketing advantage that you have a value-added project" under way, she said. "People are willing to look for and pay more for locally-produced" products.



This label may appear on packages signifying a Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assured product.

Grants Will Fund Value-Added Products

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman announced the Rural Business-Cooperative Service Value-Added Agricultural Product Market Development grants.

These 231 grants in 43 states total over $37 million and will fund a variety of agricultural ventures. Recipients are required to obtain matching funds which will double the impact of the USDA grants.

A check presentation event was conducted at USDA Rural Development's State Office in Harrisburg on Monday, Oct. 28.

Pennsylvania's grants presented were:

• American Corn Growers Association: $150,000 to provide farmers with opportunities to improve their net farm income; provide farmers and farm organizations the tools to evaluate, at least on a preliminary basis, the feasibility of ethanol production; and build both consumer awareness of the role ethanol-blended fuels could play in meeting Clean Air Act requirements and demand for ethanol-

Court Rules Against Pork Checkoff

DES MOINES, Iowa — A federal judge's ruling in Michigan recently that the Pork Checkoff program is unconstitutional is a blow to the pork industry, said Craig Christensen, an Iowa pork producer and vice president of the National Pork Board.

"Obviously, the producer members who make up the National Pork Board are extremely disappointed by the ruling," said Christensen, a pork producer from Ogden, Iowa.

The Department of Justice and the Department of Agriculture will continue to review the court's decision in order to determine the next step in the process, Christensen said.

Judge Richard Enslen of the United States District Court for the Western District of Michigan ruled on Oct. 25 that the checkoff is unconstitutional and that all collections of the checkoff are to cease by Nov. 25.

Santa Gertrudis Cattle Provide 'The Good Life' For Texan

cattle,' so I put them on my own cows. The first year there was 101 pounds difference in weaning weights. Daddy's words were 'go get another one.'

"That was in 1961. I went and got another one and the rest is history."

American Bred

About 1910 the King Ranch of Kingsville, Texas, began to look into using Brahman cattle to improve the performance of the range cattle in their area, as cited by Website information.

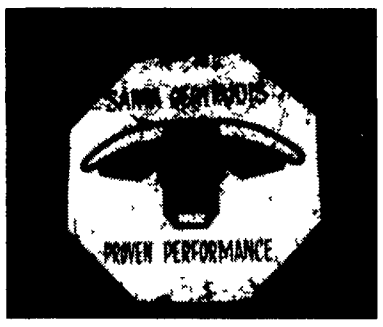
According to www.santagertrudis.org, purebred Shorthorn and Hereford cattle had a better quality meat than most of Texas' range cattle but they could not adapt to the harsh environment of South Texas. In 1910, ranch management decided to crossbreed with Brahman cattle from India.

One of the ranch's bulls, a half blood Shorthorn-Brahman bull, was mated with a group of purebred Shorthorn females. All male calves from this cross but one were castrated and the heifers were turned out with Shorthorn bulls.

Several generations later, in 1920, the Shorthorn/Brahaman crosses produced a bull called Monkey, who became the foundation sire of the Santa Gertrudis breed. Today's cattle are approximately 5/8 Shorthorn and 3/8 Brahaman.

The name "Santa Gertrudis" is from Rincon de Santa Gertrudis, the name of the original land grant purchased by Captain Richard King. This land grant is where the first headquarters of the King Ranch was established.

In 1940, the USDA recognized Santa Gertrudis as a distinct breed.



This sign hangs on the side of the Double T barn.

Santa Gertrudis Breeders International was founded in 1951 as the official breed registry. A total of more than 700,000 cattle are registered in the Santa Gertrudis Breeders International herd book today.

Breed Characteristics

On the maternal side, the cows have plenty of milk to nurse the calves, are easy calving, and have no trouble with fertility, according to Taliaferro. They are also known for their longevity. "It is not unusual for a cow to be 15 years old and still producing," he said.

Most of the calves come during the spring, with the remaining 40 percent arriving in the fall calving season.

Birthweights in Taliferro's herd average 75-90 pounds, and weaning weights average 685-700 pounds.

The majority of the breeders — 60 percent — live in Texas. However the breed's adaptability lends itself to reaches far beyond their home state.

Santa Gertudis popularity is growing in Ohio and Indiana, and the animals can even be found in the northern reaches of the continent. "Up in Canada they grow hair just like any other cattle," said Taliaferro.

The cattle are an asset to a crossbreeding program, the main reason for the breed's spread. Heat tolerance, fertility, good maternal instincts, easy calving, and hardiness are hallmarks of Santa Gertrudis cattle.

Although 95 percent of Santa Gertrudis cattle are varying shades of solid red, the animals are allowed to have white on their hides, not to exceed 50 percent on the underline and not coming up underneath the front legs.

Careful Breeding Selection

Careful selection is key, according to Taliaferro. Breeders are stressing "meat, muscling, and thickness to compete for the commercial dollar," he said. "You can't single-trait select."

Many Santa Gertrudis breeders utilize information from ultrasound technology, for example, in addition to Expected Progeny Difference (EPD) numbers and "eye" — personally assessing the cattle.

"Today, if you want to be successful, you have to use every-

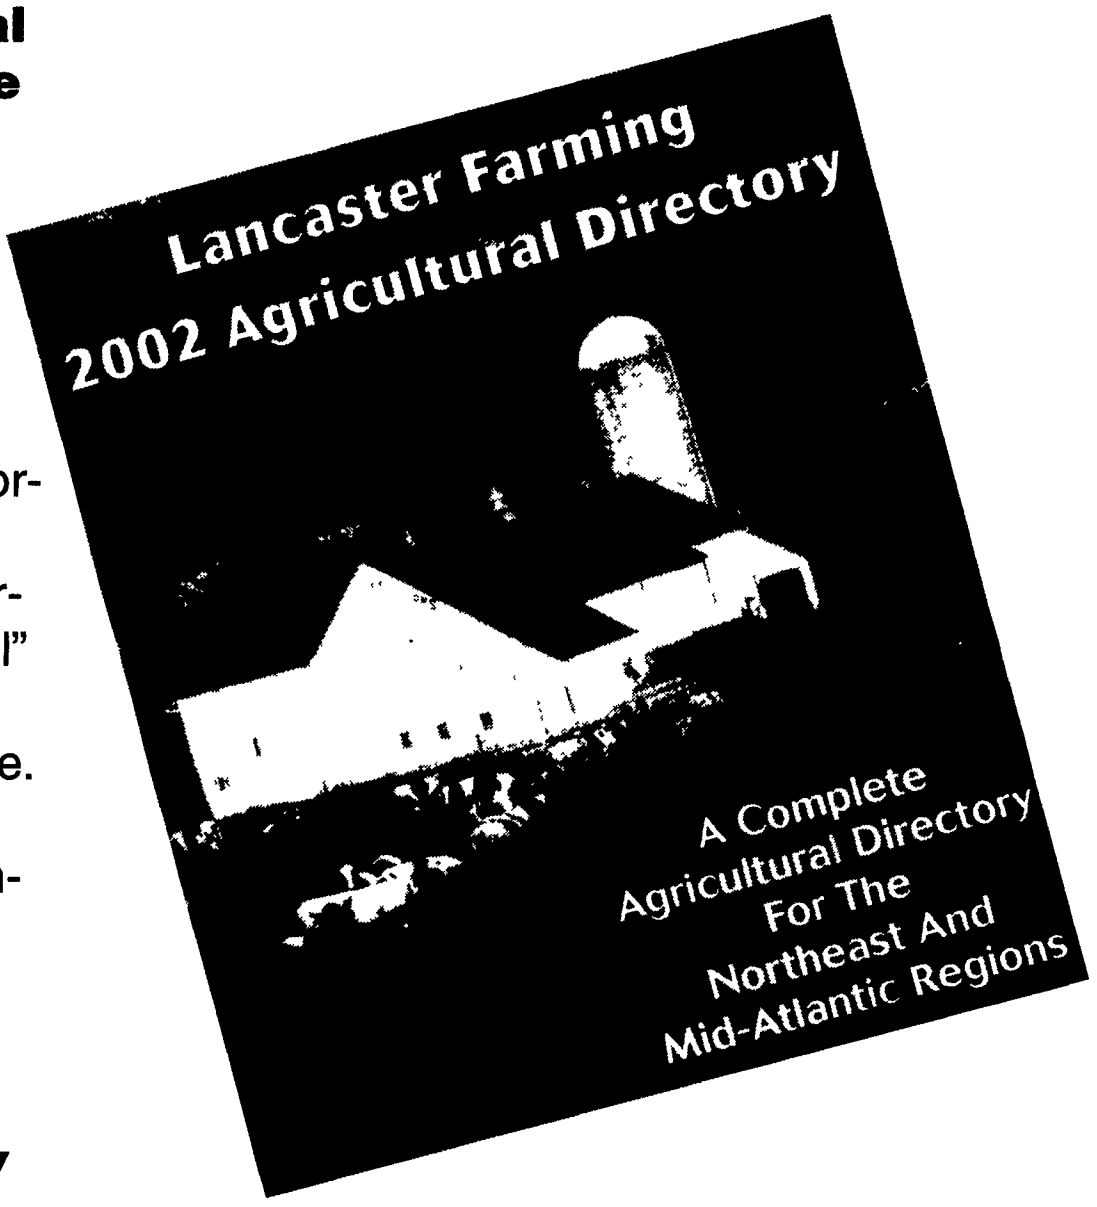
LANCASTER FARMING'S 2003 AG DIRECTORY: YOUR LINK TO DECISION-MAKERS IN THE NORTHEAST AND MID-ATLANTIC

This year marks the third annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory, your link to the decision-makers of the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic.

For 2003, we plan a new portion of the book: "Essential Contacts." It's a page that the new or beginning farmer can turn to for quick information on a variety of topics, including the "basics" of farming.



Last year, the book totalled 152 pages, and was jam-packed with information from an eight-state region, which includes Pennsylvania and surrounding states. Again, the "essential" reference book will include more for today's decision-makers in agriculture. Lancaster Farming plans to include more names, addresses, phone numbers, and Web addresses than ever before.

Make the 2003 Lancaster Farming Agriculture Directory your decision-maker source for the more than $50 billion regional ag industry.

Cooperative Talents Go Far To Raise Funds For Trust

Only Six Weeks Left For Harvest Appeal

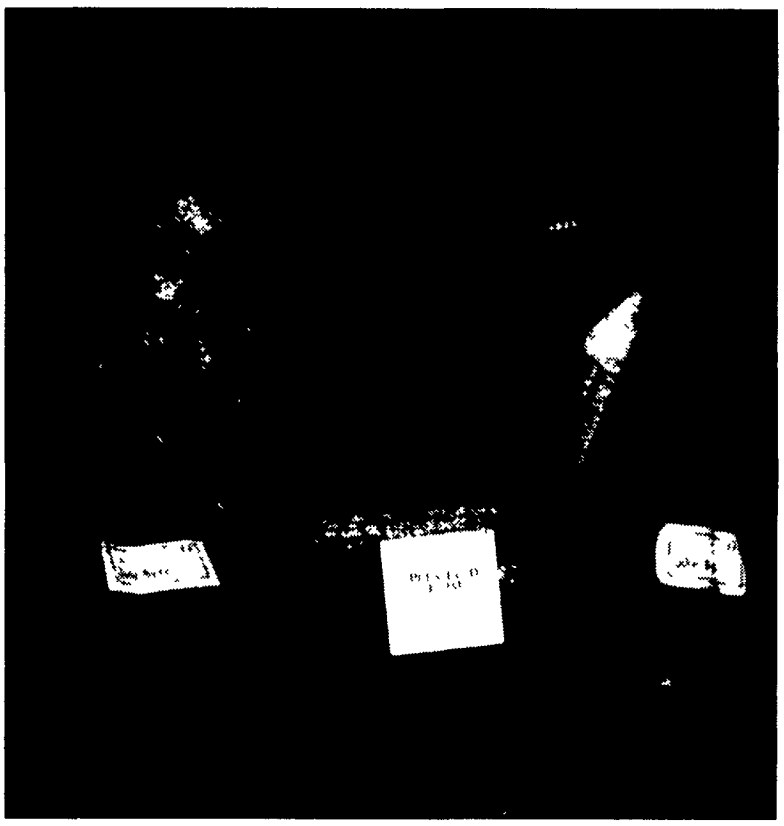
ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust Executive Director Heidi Schellenger outlined the theme for the Trust's annual dinner Thursday evening, "cooperation," which she took right out of the dictionary:

"The act of working together to achieve a mutual goal."

Trust Chairman Lee J. Dmitzak agrees. He noted to more than 200 friends and family of the trust that "development — fundraising — is the Trust's job number one," he said.

Dmitzak told those gathered for the annual banquet that the "more money the Trust is able to raise, the more farms it can preserve."



Judy and John Byler were honored as donors of the year to the Lancaster Farmland Trust.

And through cooperation, preserve the Trust did, to the tune of 18 farms. Landowners received recognition at the banquet Thursday evening at the Lancaster Quality Inn and Suites.

Schellenger said the $1.7 million easement value of farms preserved so far represents about a 1,200 percent return on investment. The Trust plans to preserve about 10 more farms before the year's end.

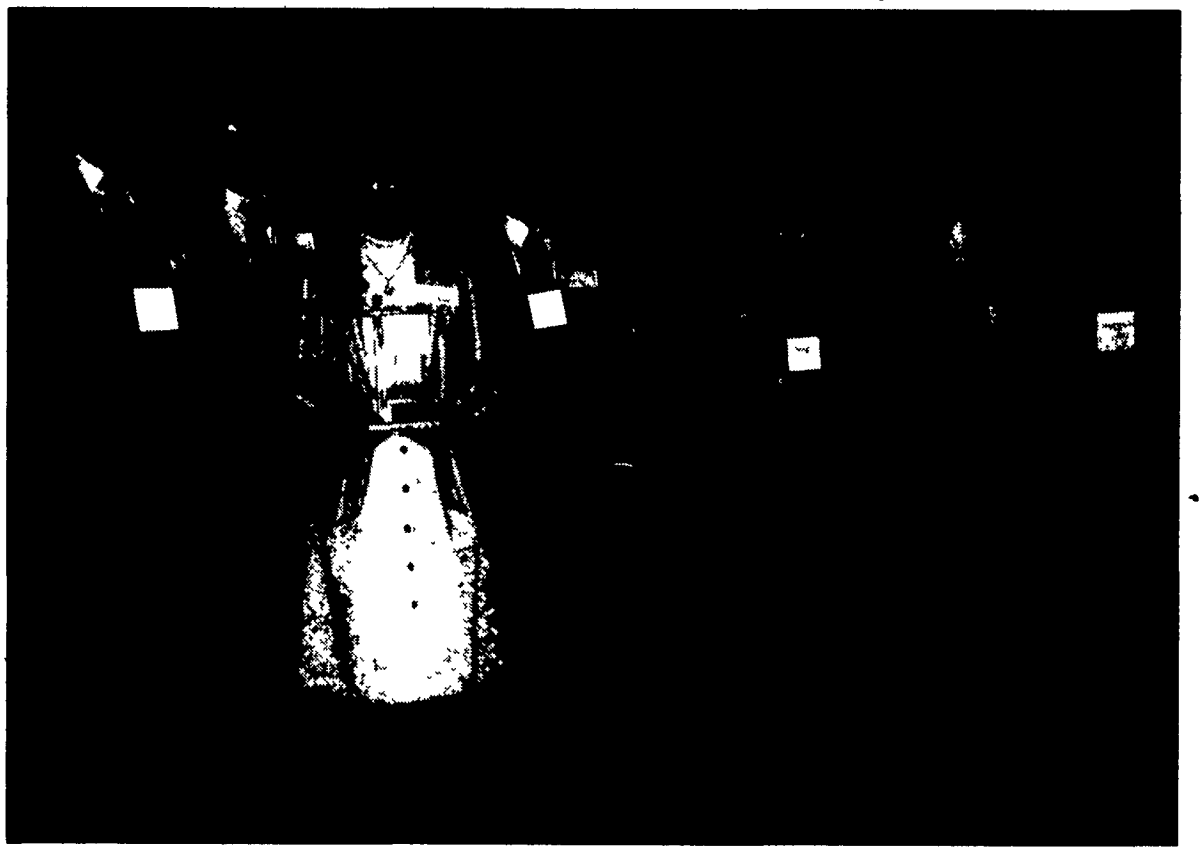
But the Trust, now with only six weeks left in its annual Harvest Appeal campaign, needs $340,000 to "keep the doors open and lights on," Schellenger said. She believes the William Penn Foundation will approve a request for $150,000 to not only help keep the Trust funded, but also the potential to hire a new staff person.

The Trust took in $57,000 from this year's spring campaign. That helped the Trust, along with the county's ag preservation board, preserve a landmark 50,000 acres, the most of any county in the nation.

"Without cooperation, we certainly could not have reached that milestone," Schellenger said.

"Amos Funk (a founder of preservation in the county) told us we should preserve 225,000 acres," Schellenger said, speaking about the toughness and resilience of the people of the county.

As of Thursday evening, there were 200 donors to the Trust with $42,000 raised toward the Harvest Appeal goal. Six weeks remain to the goal of $200,000.



Lancaster Farmland Trust land benefactor awards were presented Thursday evening to Kenneth Hershey, Daniel and Grace Rohrer, Dwight and Dorothy Forry (preserved by E.B. and Susan Abel), Grace and Clifford Stirba, and Christ Taylor.

Dr. J. Freeland Chryst, honorary chair of Harvest Appeal, spoke Thursday on his 76th birthday, urging contributions. It makes you wonder, he noted, "how many farms we could have bought in 1926 for $200,000." He pointed out someone he knew who, for $1,600, could have purchased 102 acres in the county years back.

Chryst, founder and chair of the Jay Group in Lancaster, noted there were only six weeks left in the fundraising effort and urged others who "have been so generous before" to contribute. Call (717) 293-0707 for more information.

Chair of the next appeal is Joe DelTito, market president, First Union National Bank.

Dan Zimmerman, Warwick Township manager, spoke about what Schellenger referred to as the "life-force" of a development rights program in the township. Zimmerman spoke about the transfer development rights program, an option for property owners in the ag district, with a unique concept of using the program to "recycle money" to the county's preservation efforts.

Five farms have participated in the program, Zimmerman noted, with more than 166 TDRs registered this year. Seven or eight farms have been preserved in the municipality alone.

Those honored at the banquet included the Corporate Sponsor of the Year, Turkey Hill Dairy, Inc., represented by Melissa Matillio, with a contribution from the Turkey Hill Country Classic road and bicycle race of more than $5,000 from the event. Donor of the Year Award went to John and Judy Byler, who presented a check for $20,000 to the Trust.

Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation Award went to, corporate, Community Hospital, accepted by Michael Arno. The township award was presented to Warwick, represented by Dan Zimmerman. Beth Zanetta accepted the individual spirit award winner.

Volunteer of the Year was presented to two couples: Stew and Anna Rentschler and Robert and Deborah Wenger.

Distinguished Service awards were presented to Lee Dmitzak, Lucinda E. Hampton, Rebecca F. Smoker, and Gini L. Woy.

Land benefactor recognition went to David and Jodi Findley; Anna Hoover, 33 acres, Earl Township; Douglas Weidman and Linda Lestz, 24 acres; Christ Taylor, 78 acres, Little Britain Township; E.B. and Susan Abel, 104-acre parcel, West Hempfield Township; Frank and Lena Mae Hoover, 52.8-acre farm, the first farm preserved in West Earl Township; Daniel and Grace Rohrer, 45 acres in East Hempfield Township; John Dougherty, 72 acres in Clay Township; Kenneth Hershey, 80 acres, Providence Township; Clifford and Grace Stirba, 15 acres; and Thomas Young, 44 acres, Colerain Township.

There were four anonymous land benefactors: Old Order Amish farms totaling 65 acres, Providence Township; 61 acres, Colerain Township; a 51-acre farm, Upper Leacock Township; and an Old Order Amish farm, 43 acres, Upper Leacock Township.

Farmland Trust banquet guests included, from left, Dr. J. Freeland Chryst, honorary chair, Harvest Appeal, who spoke; Dan Zimmerman, Warwick Township, Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation Award, township; and Michael Arno, Community Hospital, Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation Award, corporate.

Dairy Farmers To Vote On Amended Milk Order For The Northeast Marketing Area

BOSTON, Mass. — A referendum will be conducted in which dairy farmers who ship milk to handlers regulated under the Northeast Marketing Area will have an opportunity to express their approval or disapproval of an amended Northeast Marketing Order, according to Erik F. Rasmussen, referendum agent. The referendum will conclude on Nov. 25.

The order, as proposed to be amended, adopts revised product price formulas for establishing Class III and Class IV milk prices in the marketing order. The Class III and Class IV formulas include farm-to-plant component losses.

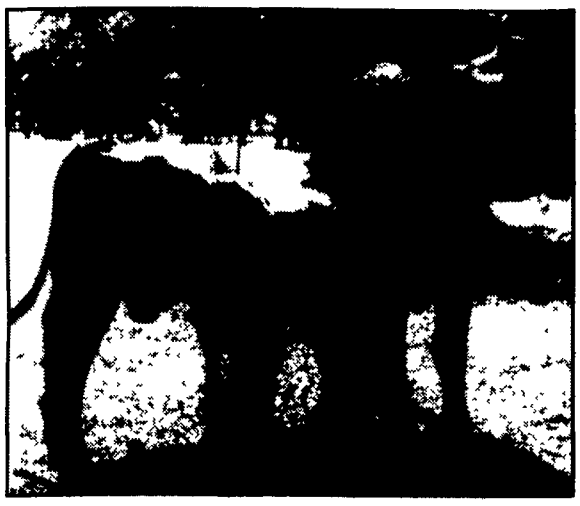
Other modifications are made in the butterfat price formula, the protein price formula, the other solids price formula, and the nonfat milk solids price formula. Additionally, the order converts the Class III and Class IV formula divisors to multipliers in order to simplify and promote consistency with all end-product pricing formulas.

The estimated effect of the annual average change in the Northeast Order's statistical uniform price is an increase of 3 cents per hundredweight.

This action responds to a Congressional mandate included in the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2000, to reconsider the Class III and Class IV pricing formulas that were included in the consolidation of Federal milk orders. The changes are based on the record of a public hearing conducted May 8-12, 2000, in Alexandria, Va.

Qualified cooperative associations of producers will be permitted to cast bloc votes on behalf of their members. A producer who is not a cooperative member, or whose cooperative does not bloc vote, may vote by individual ballot. No voting by proxy is permitted, and each producer will be entitled to one vote regardless of the number of farms the producer operates. Partnerships, corporations, and other business units or enterprises that operate dairy farms and which qualify as producers will be entitled to only one vote regardless of the number of partners, shareholders or other interested individuals which make up the organization. A notice of referendum, a summary of the provisions of the order as proposed to be amended, and a ballot will be mailed to all known eligible dairy farmers. Approval of the order as amended requires a yes vote from at least two-thirds of the dairy farmers who cast ballots.

Dairy farmers who may not have received a ballot through the mail and who feel that they are eligible to vote should call the USDA Referendum Agent for the Northeast Order.



The sight of two calves nursing at one cow is not unusual. The maternally-minded Santa Gertrudis cows watch over and suckle the herd calves often, according to Taliaferro. "The calves seem to know where the good milk is."

"We're finally being recognized for all the hard work we've put in over the years," Taliaferro said. "We're accepted more because of the changes we have made in the cattle."

Santa Gertrudis Cattle

thing. We're changing the look of the cattle," he said. Meat, muscling, and cleaning up the underline of the cattle are priorities for breeders.

Santa Gertrudis Breeders are also using ultrasound technology to help determine which calves to cull before the cattle are moved to the feedlot.

"Selecting for the superior animals has enabled breeders to really bring the breed up in a hurry," Taliaferro said.

The bulls are selected for muscling and carcass characteristics. Like all cattle, their temperament varies with the individual animal. At Double T, the bad-tempered animals are quickly culled.

The animals can be polled or horned.

"We're finally being recognized for all the hard work we've put in over the years," he said. "We're accepted more because of the changes we have made in the cattle."

Although at present most of the females are bred by live cover, AI will become more prevalent at the ranch as he seeks to use proven herd sires.

For example, he plans to use semen taken from a now-deceased homebred bull, Toothpick, to continue improving his herd.

The cattle must be correct, functional, and have volume and capacity to stay in the Double T herd. "It doesn't matter how much meat they have if they don't have good feet and legs," he said.

Ranch Help

Taliaferro is joined by his wife, Betty Joyce, or BJ, and children Chris, John, Michael, Steven, and Sheri. All of the children, their spouses, and five grandchildren live nearby and help on the ranch.

Duane Miller, Robert George Burley, Johnny Cox, and Shannon Holloway also provide full-time help.

Santa Gertrudis Cattle

Avery, Seth, Bailey, and Austin — live nearby and enjoy helping their grandparents at the ranch, as evidenced by the crayon artwork in the ranch office.

Their combined work takes care of not only the animals but produces 25,000-30,000 round bales and the same number of square bales a year.

The sprawling pastures create management challenges. "We try to see a pasture at least every other day — we don't see them all every day," he said. "We have very few health problems. They're a really hardy breed. We don't have any calving problems at all."

Raising cattle in the South presents a few different challenges than faced by Eastern shore cattlemen. Besides grasshoppers taking a large toll on crop productivity, wild hogs may wreak havoc on the fields by digging gaping holes among the crops.

Also, cattle rustling is a common problem. "Cattle disappear all the time. It's a big business. That's why we have to brand everything. We lose 6-10 a year," he said. "This year we had eight disappear that we know of."

Rustlers take the cattle to another state or run the animals through a sale barn in a faraway part of the state under a fictitious name.

Brand inspectors, however, charged with checking the brand against the name the cattle are registered under, can nab cattle rustlers when they come to pick up the check at the sale barn, according to Taliaferro.

Unfortunately, unbranded calves prove to be easy prey for rustlers.

Wylie Taliaferro, Double T ranch owner and operator, watches over his herd during a warm fall afternoon.

The herd ranges over several farms, including 4,500 acres of pasture.

The Show Ring

The cattle are marketed through private treaty and auction venues. They sell 40-60 club calves, which may be brought back for free breeding at the ranch.

Taliaferro takes his Double T cattle to 12-15 shows a year. They have brought home several national champion titles. "We would go more often if we have the time," he said, noting that shows were good farm advertising.

His work teaching the young people of the community and in FFA leadership naturally led to his involvement with the Santa Gertudis youth program, which was small (there were two junior shows) when he first began to organize the junior show 25 years ago.

"I felt like the world was wide open," he said, and began organizing Santa Gertrudis breeders to invest in the lives of young people. Breeders, for example, gave money toward the youth foundation, which offers $25,000 in scholarship money each year. Also, class winners of the 23 classes each receive a free heifer.

The first national junior heifer show, which Taliaferro helped to organize, was conducted in 1977 in Waco. This past year, the 25th anniversary, the show was again conducted in Waco and attracted more than 1,100 entries. "It's been a good 25 years," he said.

A lesson well learned...

ing to do with fluctuations in global protein prices. He speculates that higher-value MPC imports, those with protein levels well above 40 percent, are insensitive to prices. "Food processors really want MPCs," Bailey said. "Some are willing to pay top dollar because of its functional properties in their foods. These firms aren't shopping global markets for the best deals."

He said the real issue for dairy farmers is the lower-valued MPCs, those with protein levels comparable to the 40 percent protein content of domestically produced nonfat dry milk. Some of these lower-valued imports are mixed with other dairy ingredients such as dry whey and casein and come from places such as Canada and Europe. In fact, Bailey noted, the U.S. even imported MPCs in 2002 from countries such as the Dominican Republic, Estonia, and India.

As their use in the production of cheese rises, MPCs could displace domestic nonfat dry milk, and even domestically produced fluid milk as ingredients, theoretically resulting in increased cheese production and lower cheese prices. While cheese production has risen in 2002, it is not clear from Bailey's study how much of this increase can be attributed to MPC imports. "Most of this year's cheese production increase is clearly due to higher levels of milk production," Bailey said.

He notes that there were a number of ways to deal with MPCs, although none of the "cures" are favorable. First, Congress could abolish the dairy price support program. That would significantly reduce MPC imports and eliminate government purchases of nonfat dry milk, and could jump-start an MPC industry in the U.S.

Currently there is no U.S.-produced MPC. "The obvious downside to this idea is that U.S. dairy farmers would no longer have a floor under their milk prices," he said. "There's no telling how low milk prices would have fallen had there been no price support program."

Second, Congress could pass legislation to subject all MPC imports to the same tariffs as other dairy products. But Bailey says that could spark retaliation from our trading partners, particularly the European Union and Canada. "Given the U.S. farm bill and higher tariffs on steel and wood, retaliation against U.S. exports, especially farm exports, is a real concern," he said.

A more practical approach, Bailey argues, would be to tackle MPC imports as part of the current efforts to renegotiate a new global trade agreement. "That agreement should cover global trade in all dairy products, not just some," he said. "This would help put MPC imports on a par with other dairy products that enter our country."

At the same time, Bailey said Congress should consider whether the dairy price support program has effectively discouraged domestic production of MPC.

"If U.S. food manufacturers want high-quality MPC, they will find a way to purchase it. So why not make it here, in the U.S., from domestic milk sources?" said Bailey.

Penn State Cooperative Extension Capitol Region Dairy Team

NEW AND TIMELY PENN STATE PUBLICATIONS

Vinton E. Smith
Capitol Region Dairy Management Agent

The College of Agricultural Sciences and Cooperative Extension at Penn State have taken pride in providing access to many publications, both online and through their local extension offices. Here is a summary of new and timely information that is available, including milk marketing and feeding management information.

New Milk Marketing Information

Dr. Ken Bailey has recently added two new features to the Penn State Dairy Outlook Website (http://dairy-outlook. aers.psu.edu). This is a great addition to his continued effort to provide the dairy producers of Pennsylvania with the latest information on the dairy markets.

Are you tired of reading his weekly report? The first new feature that he recently added won't add anything to your list of things to read. You can play a weekly radio report directly from his Website. Just go to the Dairy Outlook Website and look for "Ken Bailey's Weekly Commentary" and go down to Audio Recording. You will have two options for the download, depending on your Internet connection speed. Click on either one and Window's Media Player should kick in.

Secondly, he will be posting a brand new quarterly dairy outlook report. This report will be available from his Website in PDF format. The first report will provide a detailed forecast of milk, cheese, and butter supply, demand, and prices for 2003. Bailey commented, "Even if you don't agree with my weekly report, you may find this newsletter useful!"

Timely Feeding Management Information

Many dairy producers across Pennsylvania are likely dealing with shortages of homegrown forages because of dry weather conditions throughout this year's growing season. Questions that they often ask include: "What should be done now?" 'Should forage intakes be kept at a minimum?" "Should hay or other forage be purchased?" and "Should roughage or high-fiber feedstuffs be used?"

An excellent publication called "Feeding During Shortages of Home-Grown Feeds" from Penn State can help you and your nutritionist answer these questions. It reviews a list of 10 approaches to dealing with the economic and nutritional challenges of feeding during years of short feed supply.

This publication also has several tables of information that will help you consider the economic implications of feeding different feed ingredients. It includes simple formulas for determining whether a particular ingredient makes economic sense to feed based on the current price of shelled corn and soybean meal. These tables and formulas are also available in an Excel® spreadsheet format. It can very quickly evaluate the feeding value of many different feed ingredients.

Additional tables that list the nutritive value of alternative feedstuffs are also provided. They include DM, CP, NDF, NSC, and NEL. These tables include practical implications and recommendations that should be considered before adding these ingredients in your rations.

These publications are available through your local extension office or they can be downloaded from the Penn State Dairy Nutrition Website at http://www.das.cas.psu/dcn.

decides how best to organize and develop its farm business to meet the needs of that farmer's family or farmers' families.

As many of you may know, I represent the 36th Senatorial District here in northern Lancaster County and western Chester County, Pennsylvania. My senatorial district is the leading agricultural area in Pennsylvania. I represent more smaller, medium-size, and large farms then any other senator in the commonwealth. I represent local governments that have in the past and continue to serve their local areas with superior fairness and integrity.

Personally, I have been involved in production agriculture all my life as an owner of a 107-acre crop, cattle, and poultry farm. I have served in the Pennsylvania Legislature for more than 26 years and have consistently fought for, promoted, and advanced agricultural legislation with one central goal: to help ensure that Pennsylvania farmers have a fair opportunity to be successful in their farming endeavors.

As you read the discussions surrounding SB 1413, I hope you are asking yourself some key questions. Who are the individuals behind the formulation of opposition to this legislation? How well do you know these core leaders? Do they have a long history in a farming lifestyle and business we know as agriculture?

We all know that agriculture constantly faces challenges like no other industry. With that fact in mind, as fewer lawmakers and regulators have a personal connection with agriculture, Pennsylvania's agriculture success must be met with as close to a common voice as possible. There is strength in consistent and unified numbers. If the opposition leaders to SB 1413 are truly fighting to "preserve agriculture" here in the commonwealth, why are they trying to divide us? Big versus small, sole proprietors versus corporations, contractual agreements versus independents, we truly are a diverse group.

However, if we are going to continue to have a strong agricultural economy, we must have a unified voice in Harrisburg. There is room for all of us here in Pennsylvania, just like there continues to be room for all types of farms here in northern Lancaster and Chester counties. Sure, there will always be differences of opinions between farmers — isn't that partly why we enjoy being farmers? I urge you, before you get caught up in the rhetoric in opposition to SB 1413, to look into the organizations leading the opposition. Personally, as a farmer, I think you may be highly dismayed. Many of these groups have a poor understanding of the commitment needed to run a successful family farm.

Much of the opposition has been in attacking the environmental danger of agriculture. Well, it is true that there have been bad examples now or then; remember, as farmers, it behooves our commitment and profitability to be conservationists. We as Pennsylvania farmers do have a tremendous responsibility to keep the environment safe and clean. This is why we have developed plans such as the Nutrient Management Program, which is heralded as the most advanced program in the nation. Here in Pennsylvania we have been proactive in working with the farming community to develop proper animal waste plans so we do not end up with situations that may have occurred in other states. Environmentally speaking, our regulations concerning new animal waste storage units are unbelievably stringent. If you don't believe me, go try and build one. You probably will be tempted to call your legislator and complain.

Yes, I support SB 1413. I voted for it and am a co-sponsor of the legislation. Do I think it is necessary in seeing farmers continue to independently choose what is best for their farm, family, and business? Yes, it will help. However, I am more concerned with the fact that those in opposition to this bill are trying to divide us against each other.

We can preserve as much farmland as possible, but if we allow this division to continue, we will be doing nothing to preserve our way of life. Being a farmer means deciding for yourself how that life should look: big or small, sole proprietorship or corporate, contractual agreements or very independent. Senate Bill 1413 was founded and continues to be a mechanism to help ensure you have the opportunity to decide what you want your family farm to look like.

Finally, remember, any municipality in this commonwealth that is obeying state law has no need to fear SB 1413. Just keep on governing with honesty and integrity.

any business or industry in my community.

One of the purposes of SB1413 is to limit local townships from enacting ordinances that might restrict the expansion of ag business. Our township officials, as elected delegates of our community, enact ordinances that deal with a multitude of businesses and industries in our townships.

Why as farmers do we believe that these elected officials should enact ordinances that regulate every other business but ours? If the local store owner wants to expand his business to a Wal-Mart-sized operation should local township supervisors not have the right to demand the store owner meet local water, traffic, and sewage regulations? If an individual wants to plant a landfill in our area, should the members of the community, through their elected officials, not have some say?

Specialized legislation such as SB1413 that strips local townships from having input in the development of their communities is wrong — regardless that we farmers may be the designated benefactor.

I decry the development of my community as it loses its farming roots. But a far greater loss is the stripping of local townships to enact ordinances to regulate all business here. Mr. Peechatka is right when he says farming is vastly different from 1982 when the right to farm act was enacted.

But our communities are also different than they were in 1982, and we need to meet the expectations of our communities today. SB1413 does not allow communities to have a voice in their own futures.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2705	1624
LAST WEEK	2761	1676
LAST YEAR	2762	1605

CATTLE Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold steady to weak early trending 1 00-3 00 higher late in the week on a very attractive offering Buyers seemed very hesitant to procure the plainer supply of steers that went through the ring on Tuesday, however late in the week buyers threw caution to the wind as the bulk of the Choice steers were bringing in the 70 00 range Keep in mind that the direct feed yards are moving their steers from 69 00-70 00 this week, which means any premium the local trade had to the Western feeders is now all but gone However most local feeders are tickled just to be receiving 68 00-71 00 for their hard fed cattle and could care less if they hold a premium as long as bids keep increasing The outlook looks very good for feeders as February live cattle futures contracts are knocking on the 76 00 door, and if all goes well packers will try to keep the cash trade and the futures aligned Slaughter heifer numbers were light this week with a firmer undertone noted on the few available Holstein steers kicked off the week trending weaker with Thursdays bids firmer as a very hot slaughter steer market worked to move all slaughter classes higher Slaughter cows sold steady to 2 00 higher this week Lean Holstein cows continue to form a steady line from the farm to the local sale barns, and buyers continue to gobble up the supply Speaking of gobble the Thanksgiving holiday is right around the corner and with that millions of pounds of turkey is consumed Many producers are hoping that the demand for beef products holds firm this holiday season, as retailers spend all of their energy moving turkey and pork products Slaughter bulls sold mostly 1 00-2 00 higher as the demand is as good as the supply This week's supply included 37 percent steers 7 percent heifers 40 percent cows 7 percent bulls, with the balance feeders

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Mark Schweiker, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced the launch of a newly designed Department of Agriculture Website, which can be accessed through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "agriculture."

"Our new Website is only one example of how technology and agriculture can work together to improve Pennsylvania's No. 1 industry," Hayes said. "I encourage all Pennsylvanians to visit our new site to learn more about what's happening in our agriculture."

New Website features include a media library section where users may download applications, licenses and publications; the capability to load faster in Internet browsers; and conformity with Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) standards.

November Is Adoption Month

Nolt Family Grows Through Adoption

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Life often springs surprises. That's what happened to Andy and Loretta Nolt when they decided to open their home to a foster child.

The couple already had two birth children and had no thoughts of increasing their family size through adoption. In fact, Andy was a bit skeptical of becoming a foster parent.

His wife suggested they try two foster placements to see whether or not foster parenting was something they wanted to continue.

"After two placements, we were hooked," Loretta said of the children who found not only a safe place in their home but also captured a place in the Nolts' hearts.

Today the Nolts have adopted four of their former foster children, which means the family has six children within a seven-year age span: Bob, 12; Christian, 9; Travis, 6; Joey, 6; Matthew, 6; and Alexis, 5.

"This is it," Loretta said of the family size. The decision to limit their family to six children is not by choice but in compliance with state law that limits families to four adoptions if they already have two birth children.

For those who want to adopt more than four, the Nolts' nine-year-old son Christian has this advice: "If you really want a lot of kids, adopt six first and then have babies."

Although Andy was formerly skeptical of foster parenting, his wife likes to recount a story that shows his change of perspective. After their first foster child returned to his birth mother, Loretta and their two sons took a week's vacation in Florida. When she returned home, she found a note on the table from her husband informing her that he went to pick up another foster child.

Loretta recalled being shocked that he made the decision without even calling her to ask her opinion.

Andy retorted that the foster agency had called and needed a home right away for a 2-year-old, and he couldn't say "no."

In those beginning years, the Nolts dealt with frustration and broken-heartedness as they saw children returned to birth parents who exhibited uncaring attitudes.

It was especially heart-wrenching to take the foster children to court-ordered visits with birth parents and observe negative behaviors in parents that reflected upon the children.

Not all problems were with foster children. Their birth children were also affected by the foster parent and child issues.

Bob, 12, and Christian, 9, have memories of how each sibling became a family member.

Andy and Loretta Nolt with children, Matthew, Joey, Travis, Alexis, Bob, and Christian.

Twins Matthew and Joey and Alexis, 5, are eager to talk about the memories connected with the photos in their albums.

"They'd ask us when they could visit their other parents or when they would be leaving to go back to their other home," Loretta said.

Often, too, a foster child would be showered with presents during court visits. The Nolts' birth children couldn't understand why they didn't get as many presents.

After the Nolts needed to return a newborn baby who had been with them for 1½ years, they were heartbroken. Then the agency offered them twins.

"This is like Job (the biblical story)," son Bob (about 7 years old) said of the experience. "God took away one son and gave us back double."

Sometimes children who returned to birth parents were placed back in the foster care system. If adoption became a possibility, the Nolts inquired, and through this eventually adopted four children.

Travis is an example. He came to the Nolts as a newborn baby and was with them for eight months. Then he was returned to his birth mother for three years. When that did not work out, Travis was placed back into foster care with the Nolts, who eventually adopted him.

Of course, Travis had no memory of his previous stay. At first he argued that the baby pictures the Nolts showed him could not be of him. But eventually Travis grew to treasure the idea that he was with the Nolts as an infant.

The Nolts said that compiling photos into a scrapbook with stories helps the children feel connected. It helps them understand their life better.

Unfortunately, many children in the foster care system do not have photos as themselves as babies. If foster parents send photos and scrapbooks along home to the birth parents, the records are often lost.

Many states are requiring that a lifebook, which is a record of the child's life from birth, be compiled by adoptive parents. (See accompanying story on Beth O'Malley).

It's been about eight years since the Nolts opened their home to foster children. Along the way, they learned some lessons, some surprising and some expected. For example, Loretta said, it's important to take in children younger than those already in the family. Otherwise they struggle more with where they fit into the family.

Although it would seem in the best interests of foster children to keep siblings together, the Nolts and the agency found that doing so often causes more problems. For reasons not always clear, she said, the children seem to have a more difficult time adapting to a new family and are prone to more behavior problems.

Loretta is cautious of people who want to become foster parents in order to adopt. She said, "It usually doesn't work out that way. The agency always does everything possible to return children to their birth parents."

Of the workload, the noise, and activity of caring for six children so close in age, Loretta said, "I have a wonderful husband who loves kids and have good friends with experience (in foster care). The foster parent association is really helpful with advice, and talking with other parents is very supportive."

Author Helps Adoptees Deal With Past

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Beth O'Malley knows what it feels like to be adopted. She loved her adoptive family yet felt a great loss from not knowing her birth mother or the circumstances surrounding her adoption.

She believes much of the emotional struggles that many adoptive children face can be alleviated. She believes she has information that can change children's lives.

O'Malley wrote a book and presents workshops on developing a "Lifebook," which helps adoptive children deal with loss and chronicle events to help them understand their past.

"A lifebook is a record of a child's life from birth. It uses words, photos, and the child's artwork to chronicle the critical events in a child's life in child-friendly terms," O'Malley said.

Most children who are adopted have stories that do not fit into traditional baby books or journals.

Some of those stories may be painful or unknown. In her manual, O'Malley gives numerous ways to record events in a way that can bring emotional healing to a child.

She believes that truth is more beneficial than silence. "Kids need to know there's a really good reason for what has happened," she said. "Lies can damage trust and relationships in such a way that takes years to repair."

One of the examples she gives to write when dealing with a child who may have been abused or molested is to write: "...there are many reasons children don't stay with their first mother and father. All the reasons have to do with parents, not kids. Little babies can't do anything wrong...."

Another example is to write: "After you were born, your birth mother was very happy to have given birth to you. She was also sad and confused. I think part of the reason was that she had grownup problems...."

Some families are reluctant to create a lifebook because they say they have no information to write about.

O'Malley counters, "Every tiny

Beth O'Malley knows what it is like to be adopted. She was adopted and has worked as a social worker for many years. She knows the disconnectedness that children sometimes feel from the empty spaces in their lives. "I wrote a book and give workshops to teach adoptive families how to create a 'Lifebook' that establishes a past to enable children to create a future," she said.

piece of information is gold. There are creative ways to work with little or no information."

She believes a child's original birth certificate should be included in the book.

"This official record always fascinates children of any age. Court papers or official records will suffice if no birth certificate is available," she said.

O'Malley encourages parents to create lifebooks with the help of their child. The process often helps them grow closer together. She teaches parents to record such thoughts as "I'm glad your part of our family. I love having you in our family."

Some adoptive parents say their family is open and discusses everything. They see no reason to create a lifebook.

But O'Malley said, "A book can be picked up and held whenever a child desires. It's sort of like a security blanket. A lifebook gives a child a tool to help them. Adoptees often have a sense of missing pieces. Lifebooks create pictures where none exist, help answer questions, increase self esteem, and teach children the truth."

Many examples are given in O'Malley's book about how to explain the birth mother and daddy and the adoptive parents' love for the child.

Even for children who are not adopted, a lifebook is a great thing for parents and children to produce together. Reading O'Malley's book offers parents many creative ideas to create a lifebook or scrapbook for each child.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

The two maple trees in our front yard had very pretty leaves this year. In other years we usually took a day's drive to see fall foliage in the mountains. But time changes things, and this year we must stick closer to home.

There were quite a few flower bulbs to dig this fall. I was disappointed that some did not bloom at all as it was too dry. Maybe next year they will do better.

Our son and grandson came from Delaware and helped us one Saturday. They mowed part of our large yard and put glass in our screen door. They even carried the glider into the basement and rolled up some fencing. Our daughter had already done a lot of work in the garden to get it ready for winter.

In the morning my husband enjoys watching a small herd of deer feed in our meadow. They move from woods on one side to woods on the other side. He really likes to see the bucks with their big racks. The two fawn with spots were at our front porch the other week. This is not an area that has deer and so they are an oddity for us.

We have been the recipients of several gifts recently. One lady brought a cantaloupe. One daughter brought sirloin steaks while a son brought the biggest oysters that I have ever seen. My sisters brought flowers and English walnuts for my husband to crack. When he got tired of the job, I finished doing it. It certainly is nice to be remembered just now.

20 Contestants Compete In State Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Contest

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Carrying on a more than half century tradition, 20 contestants entered this year's Pennsylvania Make It Yourself With Wool Contest October 19 at the Factory Shops at Georgian Place in Somerset.

The judges had a challenging day to pick the top two entries in the five divisions all of which modeled unique, beautiful outfits. The judges were Roberta Antram, Bonnie Foxwell, Aleecha Jones, Evelyn Miller, Shirley Pennel and Beverly Stanton.

The first place winners in the senior division and the junior division will attend and compete in the nationwide contest in Washington, D.C. with contestants from 33 states participating. The adult division winner in each state send a photo, three-minute video, and new this year, their outfit to be judged for a national winner title.

The fashion show began with a welcome by Tom Calvert, president of the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association. The 2002 Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Deidre Smith of Glencoe narrated the fashion show. She represented the state in last year's National Make It With Wool Contest.

IN the pre-teen division, sisters would take top honors. Stephanie Augustine of Palmerton, Carbon County, only six years old and in the third grade, was the winner. She made an A-line skirt of salt and pepper tweed and a blanket-stitched vest. Her older sister Grabielle, a sixth grader, was the runner-up with a jumper made from 100% Pendleton wool that she won as prize in the Maryland contest.

The junior division winner, who will travel to the national contest, was Kelsie Smith, Glencoe, in the eighth grade at Brothersvalley Middle School. She modeled a semi-fitted jacket and dress, both fully lined, in her favorite color, purple, featuring a white wool bias binding. Runner-up was Jaci Marburger, Espyville, Crawford County, who made a double-breasted navy coat and a red plaid skirt made with the wool that she received at last year's state contest.

The winner of the senior division, Amanda May, from Industry, Beaver County, will represent Pennsylvania with her stunning three-piece black wool crepe outfit accented with black and white polyester piping. The runner-up was Megan Keller from New Paris, Bedford County, who made a four-piece outfit — a winter white coat, periwinkle tweed jacket, periwinkle skirt and cream blouse.

Pam Marburger of Espyville, placed first in the adult division with a coat made from wool she won at last year's contest, a denim style jacket, hipster jeans and a western shirt. Katherine Augustine, Palmerton, was the runner-up with a princess-styled jumper made from the wool she had won in a Maryland state contest. She hand felted leaves and acorns for the three dimensional appliques on the bodice.

First place in the made for others division was Gail Smith, mother of Diedre, who modeled the two-piece red wool dress with black faux fur on the cuffs of the long sleeves. Runner-up was Roberta (Robin) Codek, Davidsville, who made an 1880's style dress for her daughter Katie who will wear it as a tour guide at the Johnstown Flood Museum. The bodice is a green wool flannel with velvet collar and cuffs and the skirt is a wool plaid of forest green, blue and rust.

First place winners in the Pennsylvania Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Contest wearing their winning entries are, from left: Pam Marburger, Espyville, Crawford County, adult division; Amanda May, Industry, Beaver County, senior division; Kelsie Smith, Berlin, Somerset County, junior division; Stephanie Augustine, Palmerton, Indiana County, pre-teen division; 2001 Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Deidre Smith, Glencoe, Somerset County, model for the made-for-others winning entry of her mother, Gail Smith, on the right.

Coordinators of the competition were Jodell Antram of Somerset and Peggy Black of Boswell. Sponsors were the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, American Sheep Industry women, and the American Sheep Industry Association.

Entries Needed For Farm Show's Family Living Department

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Each year, the Pennsylvania Farm Show receives more than 1,500 entries in its family living department. Due to the Farm Show Exposition, the family living department will be located at the east end of the main exhibition area for the 2003 Show. The family living area will be enhanced and expanded this year.

The Farm Show dates are Jan. 11-18.

In order to encourage more entries in the family living area, a special supplement, the "Family Living Premium List," has been compiled. In this supplement, all areas are listed. They include canned foods, dried fruits and vegetables, baked products, clothing, crafts, 4-H and youth categories, plus the special baking contests.

These contests have something for everyone. Use a slow cooker to make Wild Mushroom Beef Stew.

Featured Recipe

One-dish meals can be made in a skillet, pot, oven, slow cooker, or mix together in a bowl if it's a whole meal salad.

Probably the most popular and easiest is using a slow cooker.

For Wild Mushroom Stew, put the beef in the cooker in the morning, set the temperature. Dinner cooks all day while you're away or busy around the house. No peeking, no stirring, no attention needed.

The beef is done to perfection, moist, and fork-tender, ready to enjoy —complete with the irresistible aroma that greets you when you walk in the door. Plus, cleanup is easy since you only use one pot.

Try this recipe for a hassle-free homemade meal at the end of a busy day.

WILD MUSHROOM BEEF STEW

2 pounds beef for stew, cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
¾ cup ready-to-serve beef broth
¼ cup tomato paste
¼ cup dry red wine
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 pound red-skinned potatoes, quartered
8-ounces assorted mushrooms, quartered
1 cup baby carrots
Fresh parsley (optional)

Combine flour, salt, pepper, and thyme in small bowl. Place beef in 4½-5½ quart slow cooker. Sprinkle with flour mixture to coat.

Combine broth, tomato paste, wine, and garlic in small bowl; mix well. Add to beef. Add potatoes, mushrooms, and carrots; mix well.

Cover and cook on high 5 to 6 hours or on low 8-9 hours, or until beef and vegetables are tender. (No stirring necessary during cooking). Stir well before serving. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

Makes 6 servings about 1½ cups each.

Lasagna made without precooking the pasta not only is easier but also has a better flavor.

NO BOILING LASAGNA

2 containers (15-ounces each) ricotta cheese
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese, divided
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, divided
2 eggs
2 jars (1 pound 10 ounces each) spaghetti sauce
12 uncooked lasagna noodles

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine ricotta, 1 cup mozzarella, ¼ cup Parmesan, and eggs.

In 13x9-inch baking dish, spread 1 cup pasta sauce. Layer 4 uncooked noodles, 1 cup sauce, and ½ ricotta mixture; repeat. Top with remaining 4 uncooked noodles and 2 cups sauce.

Cover tightly with aluminum foil and bake one hour. Remove foil and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake uncovered 10 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Serve with remaining sauce, heated.

Wild Game Food Safety

Do you enjoy hunting or fishing in Pennsylvania?

You're not alone — according to the Pennsylvania Game Commission, 2.36 million hunting licenses were issued in 2001. Programs and literature are readily available for safe hunting practices, but food safety education for wild game is a newer consideration for many hunters. In order to keep game meat safe from field to table, the following practices are recommended:

• Transporting carcasses—Keep carcass out of direct sunlight and cool. After dressing, pack cavity with plastic-wrapped snow or ice, tying shut with a rope. Transport to processing facility as soon as possible. If you intend to process the wild game yourself, refrigerate at 40 degrees F or less. Don't count on the air temperature of your garage to have a constant air temperature below 40 degrees F, and never leave the wild game exposed outside to fluctuating temperatures.

• Storage—Keep raw game meat in a container on the lowest shelf of refrigerator to avoid cross-contamination from bacteria on the meat dripping onto ready-to-eat foods. Store raw for 2-3 days maximum. Optimum refrigeration temperatures are 33-38 degrees F.

• Proper handwashing is a must—Wash hands with soap, rubbing together under hot water for 20 seconds before any food preparation, most especially wild game. This recommended method greatly reduces the number of soil and microorganisms.

• Safe food preparation—Most wild birds naturally harbor disease-causing bacteria like salmonella, and campylobactor, and E. coli that can cause food-borne illness. Venison has also been found to contain E.coli 0:157 as well. Wild pigs and bears may be contaminated with the Trichinella parasite. Cooking foods to proper temperatures will kill these microorganisms; game meat to 160 degrees F (including when processing for jerky), whole birds to 180 degrees F. Measuring these temperatures with a calibrated thermometer is the only way to know the game is safely cooked, and may also help in overcooking. However, you can't count on cooking alone to assure safe game meat.

If you keep the food in temperature ranges from 40-140 degrees F for 2 hours or longer, you give these bacteria the opportunity to grow and multiply to dangerous levels. Some produce toxins, and even extended periods of cooking will not destroy the poison they produce. If you leave the food out to cool in these temperatures, you again give the bacteria the same chance to reproduce to unsafe levels or make toxins. You can't tell by looking at the food, smelling, tasting, or touching it that it contains disease-causing bacteria or toxins. Don't give them this chance to grow. Cool cooked foods in small portions under refrigeration. Don't leave raw meats or leftovers on the counter to defrost—do so under refrigeration.

Following these safe practices is a must for any wild game hunter and cook. Share these practices with the young hunters and cooks at your house or camp. The young, elderly, and those with chronic diseases like diabetes, cancer, heart and lung diseases are most at risk for food-borne illnesses.

For more information on food safety, including wild game (this is just a introduction), contact your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Pamphlets on a variety of wild game are available.

QUESTION — Gloria Miller, Christiana, lost the recipe for mini upside down pineapple cake, which is made in cupcake pans.

ANSWER — For Ralph Nissley who wanted to know how to can pumpkin, a reader sent in these instructions.

Canned Pumpkin For Pies

Select nice pumpkins (preferably butternut). Wash and peel with a vegetable peeler or knife. Cut pumpkin into 1½-inch slices. Remove seeds. Put slices in kettle. Add water and cook until soft. Drain off water. Put pumpkin through food mill or ricer. Pumpkin sauce should not be too thick. Add water to make it fairly thin if needed. Put in desired size canning jars. Put on lids and screw bands. Put jars in canner and cover with water. Boil for three hours.

Also thanks to Carol Hostetter who sent in a recipe similar to that previously printed. She also suggests a short-cut of halving the pumpkin and placing skin side up on a cookie sheet in the oven. Bake until soft and then scoop out the pulp and put through a Victoria strainer.

ANSWER — Victor Chmura, Pottstown, wanted to know how to can white mushrooms to use in recipes later. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending the following instructions.

Mushrooms

Use only fresh mushrooms known to be edible. Wash and trim mushrooms. Cover with cold water. Let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Rinse. Heat, do not boil, 15 minutes in just enough water to prevent sticking. Pack, hot, into hot canning jars. Add ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon ascorbic acid to each pint. Add boiling water, if needed, to cover mushrooms. Process in pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure, pints or half pints for 30 minutes. Do not use quart jars.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe to make a candy bar that tastes similar to Snickers. Thanks to Ann Chapman, Ulster, for sending a recipe.

¼ cup butterscotch chips
¼ cup creamy peanut butter
Filling:
¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
¼ cup evaporated milk
1½ cups marshmallow creme
¼ cup creamy peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups chopped salted peanuts
Caramel Layer:
14-ounce package caramels

ANSWER — Thanks to Joyce Stuff, Mercersburg, for sending these ideas for the new homemaker who wanted ideas for entertaining guests with ease. Joyce advises the new homemaker to build confidence in herself by taking chances in finding out what works best for her and what her guests like when they visit. Look for recipes that are appealing. Ask relatives and friends for recipes and experiment. Here are two recipes from Joyce's nieces. The recipes are easy to prepare and are favorites this time of the year. The recipes also fit in great for the request for ways to use apples.

Melinda's Simple Apple Platter

Spread 8-ounces softened cream cheese over bottom of 8 to 10-inch round plate.

Pour 6-ounce jar of butterscotch topping over cream cheese. Spread evenly except for outer edges of cream cheese.

Wash, core, and slice 1-2 eating apples. Place apple slices around outer edge of platter. Serve by having guests scoop up the cream cheese and topping with the apple slices.

Mary Ann's Winter Fruit Salad

1 large head romaine lettuce, torn into pieces
1 cup Swiss cheese, shredded
1 cup cashews
¼ cup sweetened dried cranberries
1-2 apples, peeled, cubed
1-2 pears, peeled, cubed

Place all the ingredients in salad bowl. Just before serving toss with the following salad dressing:

½ cup sugar
⅓ cup lemon juice
2 teaspoons onion, chopped
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup oil
1 tablespoon poppy seeds

Mix well in a jar. Can be made ahead of time.

Thanks to Carol Hostetter for writing to entertain guests with ease, plan in advance. Do as much work ahead of time as you can. It depends on you if you like help or if you want to do things yourself. What you serve, depends on who you are. Cheese, pickles, red beets, deviled eggs and so forth can be made ahead of time. You can also serve an oven or crockpot meal with little clean up. Carol prefers to serve things that can be made ahead of time so she can sit and enjoy her guests without having hours of dishes to clean up later.

ANSWER — Cindy Smith, Tyrone, wanted a recipe for a carrot salad she enjoyed as a child. She recalled that it had shredded carrots, raisins, pineapples, and a dressing. Thanks to Lee Laverty for sending this recipe.

Carrot Salad

½ cup raisins
2 cups pineapple tidbits, drained
1 pound carrots, grated
1 cup pineapple yogurt
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt

Soak raisins in hot water for 30 minutes. Drain and dry. In a mixing bowl, combine raisins, pineapple, and carrots. Mix together yogurt, sugar, and salt. Add to carrot mixture; mix well, cover, and refrigerate.

ANSWER — Thanks to Sandy Alderfer, Schwenksville, for sending a recipe that she sells at her family's produce stand. Everyone seems to like it, she writes.

Granola

4 cups old-fashioned oats
1½ cups sliced almonds
½ cup light brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup cooking oil
¼ cup honey
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups raisins or diced cranberries

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. In a large bowl, mix oats, almonds, brown sugar, salt and cinnamon. In a saucepan, heat oil and honey. Whisk in vanilla. Carefully pour liquid over oat mixture. Stir gently with a wooden spoon. Spread granola in a 15x10-inch baking pan. Bake 40 minutes stirring carefully every 10 minutes. Transfer granola-filled pan to a wire rack to cool completely. Stir in dried fruit. Store tightly sealed at room temperature one week or in freezer for three months.

Crunchy Foods Not Necessarily Fiber-Rich

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Is celery a good source of fiber?

Here's something to chew on: A medium sized (7.5 to 8 inches) stalk of celery has only 0.68 grams — that's less than one gram — of fiber.

Celery might seem like it has more, but that's because the small amount of fiber it does have is situated in a way that traps a lot of water. That's what makes celery crispy and low-cal. But it goes to show that you can't judge fiber by its crunch.

Fiber is usually grouped as either "insoluble" or "soluble," but most high-fiber foods contain some of both — and, in fact, both types contain varying amounts of several components.

Insoluble fiber usually contains more cellulose, hemicellulose and lignins, and doesn't dissolve in water. Insoluble fiber is commonly found in wheat bran, whole grains, and vegetables. It actually absorbs water and helps keep us "regular."

Soluble fiber generally contains more pectin and gums. It dissolves in water and forms a gel-like substance that can collect and dispose of other compounds, like bile salts and, unfortunately, some vitamins and minerals. They're found in beans, oats, barley and some fruits and vegetables.

You can find clues to high-fiber foods on labels. Claims that say "high fiber," "rich in fiber" or "excellent source of fiber" must contain at least 5 grams of fiber per serving.

Those are great foods to help you meet the recommendation to consume 20 to 30 grams of fiber a day. Labels that say "Good source of fiber," "contains fiber" or "provides fiber" have 3 to 5 grams of fiber per serving.

Rich sources of fiber include pinto, kidney and similar types of beans, blackberries and raspberries, prunes, artichokes, and some cereals, especially bran-based cereals (read the labels). Other good sources include potatoes with skins, oatmeal, apples and oranges, corn and peas. Many foods, especially fruits and vegetables, have at least some fiber — look up your favorites in the U.S. Department of Agriculture Nutrient Database at http://www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/cgi-bin/nut—search.pl to see where your diet stands, fiber-wise.

West Snyder FFA Receives National 'Two Star' Gold Emblem

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — After ranking first of Pennsylvania's 149 FFA chapters in the National Chapter award program, the West Snyder FFA application was forwarded to the National FFA Center for ranking on a national level. West Snyder FFA Chapter received a National "Two Star" Gold Emblem at the 75th National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky., for their efforts in this program. Only the top 391 FFA chapters of the nation's 7,312 FFA chapters received this award.

Accepting the award for the chapter at the convention were Jenna Briggs, chapter vice president of community development and Amanda Shaffer, chapter reporter.

In a related activity, Derek Fetterolf, Hannah Etzler, Jenna Briggs, Tiffany Esbenshade, Amanda Shaffer, Tyler Miller, Jeremy Roush, Jeremy Waite, Steve Yakamook, and Joe Hillgrube presented two pre-convention workshops on PALS (Partners in Active Learning Support) program. This program was conducted with 500 elementary students from the Louisville area and 500 volunteer FFA members from across the nation.

Project PALS is a mentoring program that pairs up high school agriculture students with elementary students that have special needs.

The West Snyder FFA event was making "ice cream in a bag." West Snyder member Jeremy Waite dressed in a cow costume and distributed ice cream stickers while the students ate their ice cream. They also played "Foodo," a bingo style game, which teaches the players about the food pyramid. West Snyder FFA distributed milk promotion erasers, pencils, stickers, and activity books sponsored by the American Dairy Association.

Stream MAPS
of Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio, & Maryland/Delaware

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Lindsay Fessler's family joins her on stage at the Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant where Lindsay was crowned Lil' Dairy Miss. With her are her parents Leslie and Mark, and brothers, Matthew, 13, and Dustin, 8.

This is Lindsay singing her promotional song before a classroom. As the Berks County Lil' Dairy Miss, Lindsay hands out dairy-related goodies and tells them about the importance of drinking milk and eating dairy products.

Lindsay, her brother Dustin, and Grandfather David Strunk take a calf to school. Many of the first and third grade classes they visit have never seen a calf before.

Lil' Miss Berks County Dairy Miss Lindsay Fessler tells a third-grade class at Conrad Weiser West Elementary School all about living on a dairy farm.

Six-Year-Old Sings To Promote Milk

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

Wolmesdorf (Berks Co.) — Six-year-old Lindsay Fessler loves to sing. She sings in the car, in the house, and in the barn.

In fact Lindsay is seldom quiet. She has a loud, clear voice, which is what musical professionals classify as an excellent voice for her age.

Every since she was three years old, Lindsay has wanted to become a professional singer and dancer like country singer Shania Twain.

It's Lindsay's voice and singing ability that helped influence judges to select her from five contestants to represent Berks County as the Lil' Dairy Miss for one year.

To the surprise of the audience, Lindsay's performance at the pageant in May was the first time she sang a solo before an audience. Since then, she sings at about four promotional events a week.

The song Lindsay sings is called "Matt's Milking Song." Matt is her brother who got the song from his second-grade teacher. This is the words to the song that Lindsay sang at pageant and sings at dairy promotions:

Matt's Milking Song

Early in the morning let me tell you what we do. We milk the cows and we wash them too. Mom and Dad and my sister Dee, we all work together we're a farm family

Milk with cereal. Milk with cake. We get the milk that cows make. Milk for breakfast and dinner too. I like milk. How about you?

We keep the barn nice and clean. To milk a cow we use a milking machine. We got many cows not just one. It takes quite awhile to get the job done.

Milk with cereal. Milk with cake. We get the milk that the cows make. Milk for breakfast and dinner too. I like milk. How about you?

The cows are fed grass, grain, and hay. We milk the cows twice a day. To get the milk that you buy, my family works hard and so do I.

Milk with cereal. Milk with cake. We get the milk that the cows make. Milk for breakfast and dinner too. I like milk. How about you?

Lindsay's parents, Leslie and Mark Fessler, milk 150 Holsteins on their family farm, which has been in the family for three generations. They farm 650 acres and raise replacement heifers.

Lindsay helps on the farm. She helps feed the calves, gives them water and grain. She also helps get the cows in from pasture. Lindsay loves to ride bicycle and play outdoors.

Lindsay has two brothers: Matthew, 13, and Dustin, 8. Matthew helps on the farm and drives equipment.

The family is building a new free-style barn and a herringbone milking parlor, where they can milk 11 cows at a time.

Lindsay's mother did not grow up on the farm, but she works hard on it and enjoys it. She is the main milker and prefers that more than the job she held working outside the home for 10 years.

Lindsay's mother said, "I like milking because I can come and go in between. She gets up at 3:30 in the morning to be ready to milk cows at 4 a.m. In the afternoon she milks the cows at 2:30 or 3:00 in order to be able to attend evening events.

Much of the time she drives Lindsay to many activities. Lindsay is a cheerleader for Conrad Weiser Little League Football, and she tap and jazz dances for Marie Shaw Studio in West Lawn.

Lindsay had been shy, her mother said. But the experience as Little Miss has helped her mature and really come out of a shell.

Lindsay visited Conrad Weiser West Elementary School, where she is in first grade. She told her classmates about cows and milk. Lindsay took her calf to show students at the school. She handed out coloring books and erasers to all first graders in school.

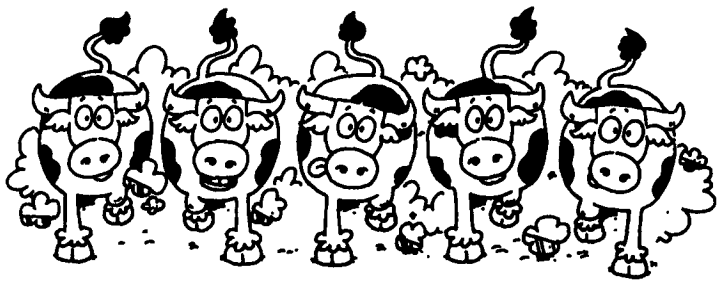
Most of the children had never seen a calf before. They really enjoyed petting the calf and watching it drink out of bottle.

Lindsay attends many interesting events such as throwing the first pitch at a Reading Phillies game.

She also helped with a promotion at local banks, where she handed out goodies to many people who attended. Lindsay continues to get requests for magnets, pens and other 'got milk' stuff that help people remember to drink milk.

She also helps the dairy princesses with serving milk drinks to visitors attending promotional events. Lindsay's favorite flavor is pina colada. She said adding a teaspoon of sweetened Kool Aid or Daiquiri mix to milk gives milk a totally different and yummy flavor. Her favorite ice cream flavor is chocolate.

Lindsay reminds everyone to drink milk, because it is important for all ages to drink milk for strong bones and health.



On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Endless, bright, clear sunny days. Withering heat and humidity. Breezes that seemed to blow right out of the heart of a desert.

That was the scene not all that many weeks away, as plants and people alike shriveled up through summer's oppressive heat and parching drought. Then, almost with a flip of the calendar page, Mother Nature turned on her shower, blessing us with nearly double the usual amounts of moisture normal for the fall season. Even our depleted creeks and dried ponds are beginning to recuperate a bit with the generous moisture.

Along with the extended gloomy and misty days that have marked a return of rainfall came the turning back of our clocks to standard time. The two combined suddenly propelled us into what seems like Alaska-length nights, threatening to send us into a collective case of SAD, the seasonal affective disorder related to lack of light and brightness.

To counter the gray gloom and early dark of mid-November, I've carted armfuls of yellow chrysanthemum blooms from the garden into the house. Undaunted by chilly nights and frosty mornings, their cheery, sunshine-like faces exude a glow of brightness from even the darkest corners of the house.

Yellow chrysanthemums are "day-lifters."

"Day-lifters" are those little things that can instantly turn a gray day cheery. Plants, green or flowering, have always done that for me, so I sneak into the greenhouse for a few moments whenever I can in passing.

Wax begonias, impatiens, and geraniums continue to put out perky blossoms even after being abruptly yanked from the ground, parked in a pot and relocated to their new indoor home. Their colorful blossoms in shades of reds and pinks, blending with the scent of soil and foliage, provide an instant transporter to a few moments of imitation springtime.

Potting up a few paperwhite narcissus bulbs from a nearby garden center further enhances the promise of fresh greenery and sweet-scented blooms. Containers of fragrant, budding paperwhites make a wonderful, inexpensive gift, by the way. Potted up now, with several weeks to root in a cool location, these simple bulbs should be ready to dress up holiday gatherings with their dainty blooms and sweet fragrance.

Just the act of potting up bulbs is a positive and uplifting activity, and, in the case of paperwhites, gives a quick return on a small investment of time.

The gentle glow of flickering, scented candles is another day-lifter. Or, maybe appropriately, a night-brightener. Candles give off a warm effect that effectively counters the blustery, blowing mist which has frequently patter the window panes and fill a room with an aura of coziness and security. I light candles, though, only late evenings when we are settled into the living room and right there to keep an eye on them.

Certain foods cooking away in the kitchen are day-lifters, although favorites would have a wide range for different households. The aroma of homemade bread baking is surely a day-lifter for many of us. Other tasty cheerer-uppers at our house would include the likes of brownies, pumpkin pie, and chocolate chip cookies, maybe baking ham, pot roast or turkey with stuffing doing their thing in the oven. And one of the most heavenly, homey kitchen aromas ever to waft away from our oven is that of homemade apple butter simmering down to a thick, sweet spread.

Though the songbirds dine at our feeders year-round, we are more aware and observant of these perky day-lifters when the weather turns gloomy. Chipper little chickadees, tiny fluffs of gray with jaunty black heads, are undaunted by even the worst weather. And the flash of a cardinal's red is unmatched in contrast to the season's more somber shades.

Up-side of these short November days is that the stars come out sooner, providing a chance in early evening to take a walk in the brisk air under them.

And, just about the time we get used to the short days, daylight will be stretching out again.

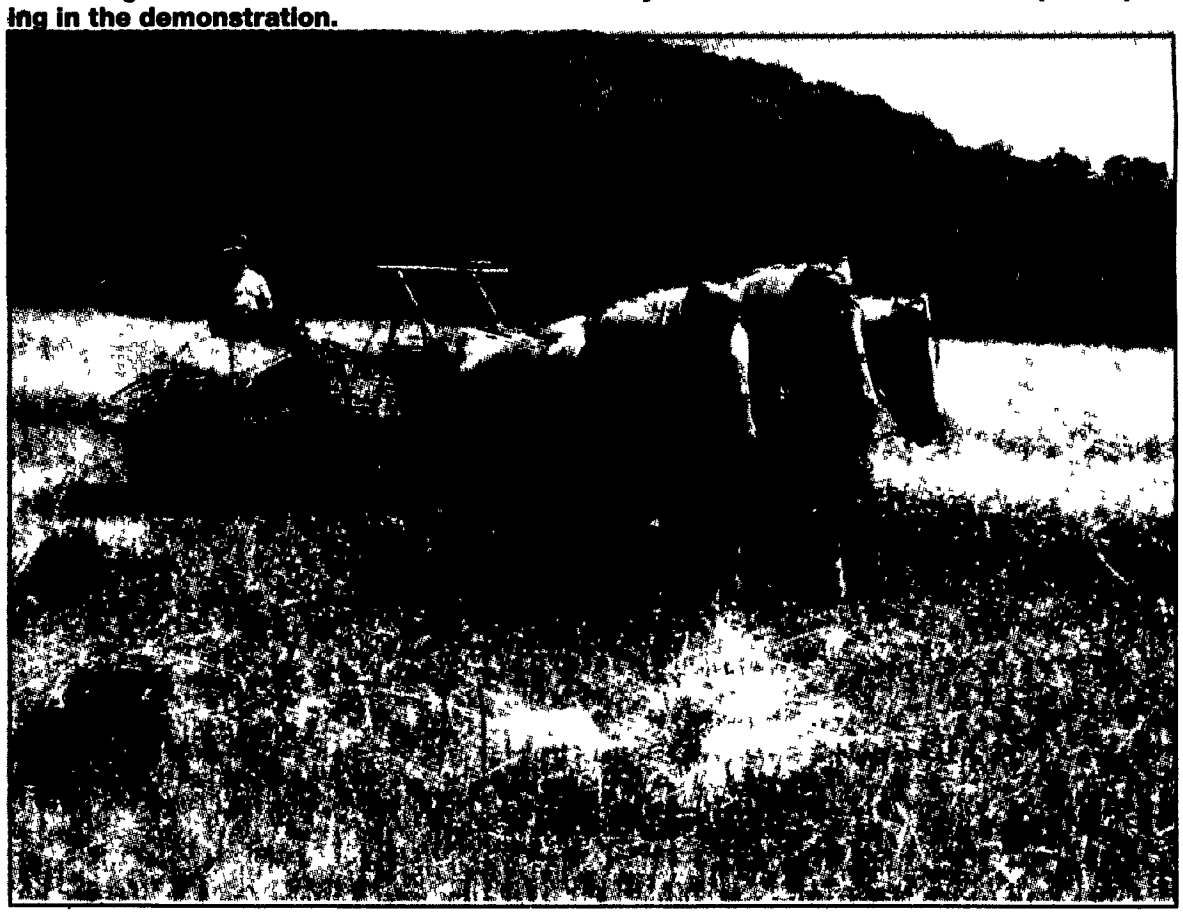
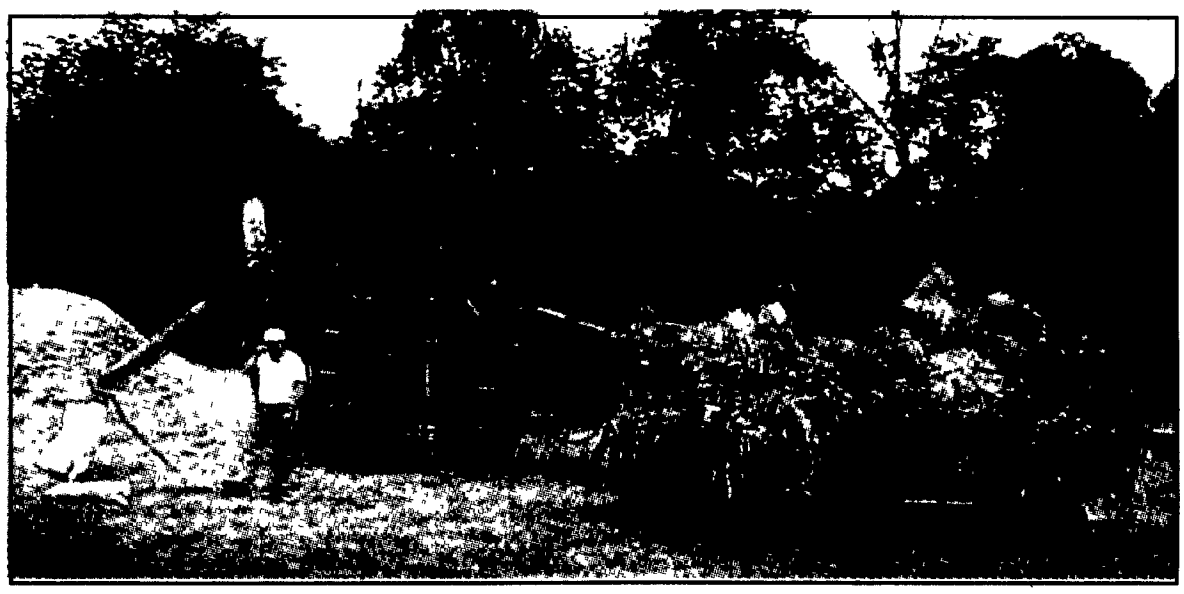
Cutting a field of wheat on a late summer day is hard work for volunteers participating in the demonstration.



This team of work horses is owned by Dorsey Musselman.



Volunteers such as Kenny Zimmerman, Dewey Zimmerman, and Joe Styer keep the threshing project going at the Village.

Volunteers working in the fields included members from Chestnut Ridge FFA.

Old Bedford Village Is Threshing Site

LINDA WILLIAMS
Beford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — In keeping with the pioneer spirit, Old Bedford Village gives an annual demonstration of cutting and harvesting wheat as it was done in days gone by.

Co-operating with the village is the Bedford County Draft Horse Association. Kenny Zimmerman, president of the club; Dewey Zimmerman, Joe Styer and Dorsey Musselman have been steadfast volunteers throughout the process.

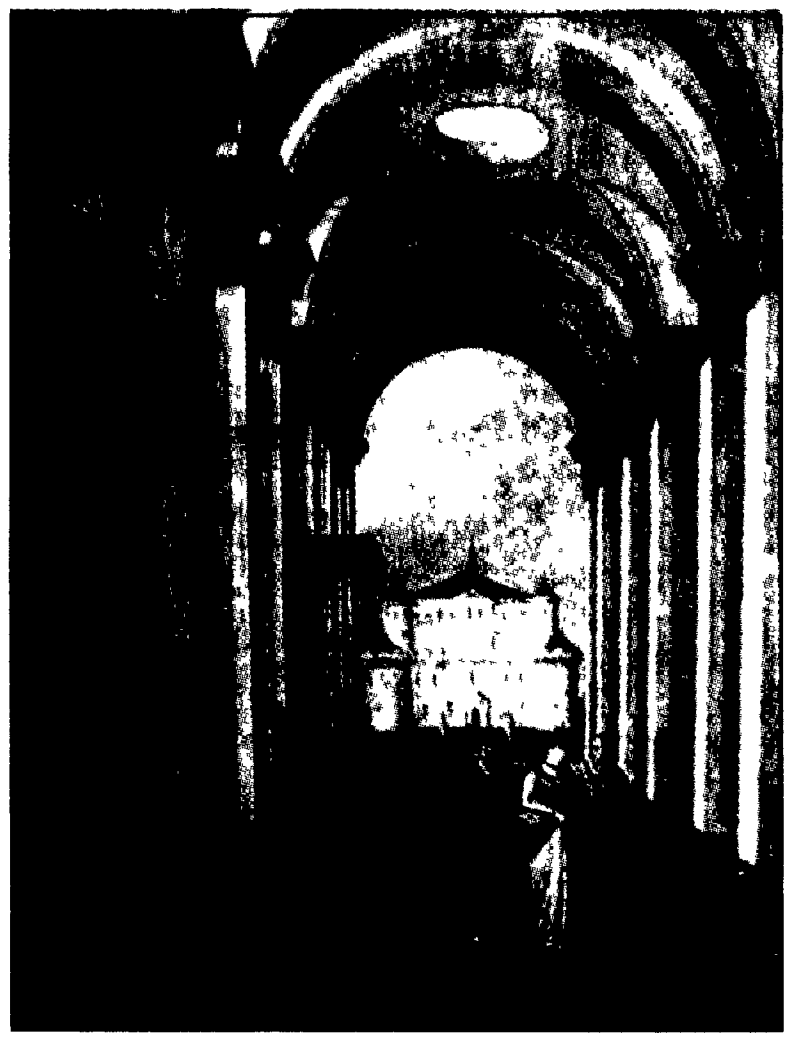
During the late summer months, members of the Chestnut Ridge FFA also volunteered labor to cut and thresh the wheat in the old-fashioned manner.

Horses belonging to Dorsey Musselman were used in the 2½-acre field. The threshing machine is donated by Jesse Clapper.

In the absence of steam, a 1941 Silver King tractor owned by Bob Detweiler of New Enterprise runs the threshing machine. Detweiler is also a member of the board which governs Old Bedford Village.

"We plan to plant another field for next year," Detweiler says, "Only this time it will probably be oats."

He says the village is extremely grateful to all the volunteers who have made this project successful.



Rare 15th century art is part of the extraordinary pieces up for bid Nov. 30 at the Spectacular Antique Auction, Kimberton Fairgrounds. Call (610) 385-4818 for more details or visit the website www.echant.com.

Russian Porcelain Has Revolutionary History

The making and purpose of Russian porcelain has changed dramatically since the first porcelain factory (St.Petersburg Imperial Factory-1744-1917) opened there in 1744.

There has always been intrigue surrounding it. In the 18th and 19th century it was made for Russian royalty and wealthy, after the Revolution it was a tool for propaganda.

Early Russian porcelain copied the French style but often had Russian scenes.

Historically, Russian porcelain manufacturing had a rough beginning. Many efforts had been made beginning with Peter the Great to establish a Russian porcelain factory. He sent secret agents to Germany to discover the secrets of the Meissen factory.

One agent purchased the secret, but it didn't mention one important element.

Without it, the factory couldn't function. However the problem was solved and by 1756 the Imperial State Porcelain factory had expert staff and workers. By 1762 Catherine the Great became involved. During her reign massive dinner sets and hundreds of Russian figures were made. The figures made well into the late 19th century make frequent auction appearance.

Prices range from $600 to several thousand dollars.

As the demand for fine porcelain grew, private individuals were encouraged to establish porcelain factories. The most important of these was Francis Yakovlevoch Garder. Today, the porcelain made by the Gardner factory is considered among the finest made during the late 18th to late 19th centuries. Factories continued to grow until by 1870 there were 70. In 1891 the Gardner factory was taken over by a massive pottery and porcelain combine: The Kuznetsov factories. By the twentieth century this factory produced two thirds of Russian ceramics, including the porcelain.

Following the Russian Revolution two important factories were Lomonosov Porcelain Factory, Leningrad and State Factory, Petrograd. The major change was the look and purpose of the pottery. Porcelains made during the years just after the revolution were decorated with propagandistic slogans such as "Workers of the World Unite." By the 1930s the finest designs from

Restoration Days At Anselma Mill Planned Nov. 19-21

CHESTER SPRINGS (Chester Co.) — The Mill at Anselma Preservation and Educational Trust will be open, Nov. 19-21, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., for visitors to view the restoration of the 1747 mill's historic equipment.

The Mill is nationally significant for its multiple layers of milling technology that spans three centuries. Updated several times, each improvement upgraded system components but never altered the mill's original Colonial-Era power train.

Rondout Woodworking, an internationally recognized mill restoration firm from Saugerties, N.Y., is restoring the Mill's technology to working condition, including its wooden gearing, grain elevators, bolter, grain cleaner, and millstones. The work, funded by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the William Penn Foundation, the Save America's Treasures Program, and West Pikeland Township, will be completed in January 2003. Once restored, the Mill at Anselma will once again operate for the enjoyment of families, school children, and scholars.

Located on Rt. 401, ½ west of Rt.113, the Mill at Anselma is also open for tours every Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. through December. the grounds are open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for self-guided tours throughout the year.

For more information, contact the Mill at Anselma Preservation and Educational Trust at (610) 917-0447.

other countries designed porcelain to Communist specifications. Among them, Eva Zeisel, famed today for her modern pottery and porcelain.

By the space-age, Soviet accomplishments were depicted with images of Sputnik and the Cosmonauts.

CLUES: Consider that because of a scarcity of information about Russian porcelain, of any age, there is a good chance of discovering unique pieces. Most recognizable are the peasant figures done in quantity in the 19th century by the Gardner factory. Some are marked"G" or the name Gardner in Latin or Cyrillic letters. Many are unmarked. Others are stamped in red with the Cyrillic letters or impressed with the Russian Imperial Double-headed eagle.

Other important 19th century porcelain factory marks to look for are Popov with a monogram and an impressed mark. Kozlov pieces have an impressed mark.

Kornilov items have a red printed mark.

All of the above named factories made the popular peasant figures not only in porcelain but biscuit.

Figural groupings in porcelain, even with restoration can sell at auction for over a thousand dollars. An exceptional, early figure, can sell at auction for $7,000.

Antiques Questions And Answers

I have a celluloid vanity set with seven pieces in the original box that was my grandmothers. How old do you think it is and what could it be worth?

C.D.C. - Chicago, IL

Your vanity set, in good condition, could sell for $150 in a shop. It was made in the 1920s or 1930s.

I found an old-fashioned pine rocker at a garage sale for $50. Can you tell me anything about it from this photo?

M.T. - Dallas, TX

Your Boston-style rocker photo shows it was handmade. Probably late 19th century. It could sell in a shop for $300 or more.

I dug up this old milk bottle while planting flowers in my back yard. It says "Empire State Dairy Co., Brooklyn" with what I think is an embossed state seal. Did I discover a treasure ?

E.L.- Brooklyn, NY

There are many collectors of old milk bottles so prices keep going up. You might get $150 for yours at a mall show.

Cargill To Expand Roaring Spring Business

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) — Cargill Animal Nutrition will invest $5 million to construct a bulk animal feed plant in conjunction with its existing pre-mix facility here.

"We will be building the bulk feed plant to keep pace with the continued growth of our dairy business in the central Pennsylvania market," said John Griffin, Cargill Animal Nutrition district general manager in Liverpool, N.Y. "Our clients have experienced great success with our Dairy Focus program, a nutrient driven approach deployed through our Dairy Focus Consultant team. Demand for the Dairy Focus™ concept has exceeded our expectations."

The bulk feed plant will have an annual capacity of 75,000 tons. The plant will require between three and five new production employees. Total employment currently is 17. Construction should be completed by July 2003.

"Cargill Animal Nutrition is pleased to be making this investment in Roaring Spring," Griffin said. "The area has been an ideal location for business and an excellent community for our employees."

Dairyland Seed Announces New Corn Releases

WEST BEND, Wis. — Dairyland Seed recently announced the release of 11 new corn hybrids for the 2003 planting season. Each of these varieties can be seen at research tours and field days through the Midwest this fall. Descriptions of new products for this area include:

73 Day Stealth-1473: Our earliest hybrid flint/dent corn flowers early and makes grain in the very northern areas where GDU's are short. High test weight.

83 Day Stealth-1483: These genetics feature strong yields and a flint dent combination. With its flint heritage, this hybrid features continuous development throughout the season producing grain in cooler growing seasons and in the northern reaches of the corn growing area thanks to its early flowering and early black layer traits. Also features high test weight. Due to continued strong performance, we've added the conventional and the YieldGard versions to our 2003 lineup.

84 Day Stealth-1483BT: Our YieldGard version of these outstanding genetics.

97 Day Stealth-1497: Entered as DST-9552 in our 2001 GENI plots, it showed outstanding performance, finishing either first or second in 15 out of 22 plots. It yielded 205 bu./acre on the Lee Batterman/Joe Majerus farm near Fond du Lac, Wis., and 191 bu./acre on the Harold Beckman farm near Iona, Minn. It features very good drought tolerance and has shown stable performance across environments with very strong disease resistance and superior root strength.

100 Day Stealth-1499BT: Stealth-1499 is enhanced with the YieldGard Bt corn borer trait.

103/101 Day Stealth-1602: Previously known as DST-9811, Stealth-1602 is easily surpassing Pioneer 3730 from South Dakota to Michigan. A large robust plant type that will respond well to stress situations across all soil types. Excellent yield potential (related to both Stealth-1089 and Stealth-1609). Features very fast drydown, excellent disease resistance, excellent cold emergence and excellent staygreen. An excellent no-till hybrid.

108/106 Day Stealth-1608: Stealth-1608 replaces Stealth-1507 with a five-bushel yield advantage in the east and a three-bushel advantage in the west. Features significantly improved stalk and roots when compared to Stealth-1507. A deep kernel hybrid with an excellent agronomic package and top-end yields. Features fast drydown with a nice visual appearance in the fall due to its excellent staygreen. Is outyielding Pioneer 35P12 by five bushels in research trials with better stalks and roots.

108 Day HiDF-4200 Soft Kernel/Digestibility: HiDF-4200 found its way into our silage lineup based on its excellent rating of one for digestibility as well as its rating of one for kernel density (the soft kernel feature). It also features a long grain filling period. It has been starred for significant performance in the University of Wisconsin silage trails for both milk per ton and milk per acre.

110/108 Day Stealth-1510: Known as DST-11114 in our GENI strip plots, this hybrid has shown outstanding yield performance. A tall robust plant type with outstanding eye appeal and excellent fall health. Is showing consistent performance across soil types and is easily outdistancing Pioneer 34R07 and 34G81 in research trials as well as 33B50. One-half point wetter than Stealth-1507, it is showing a solid six-bushel yield advantage. Yielded 194-bushel/acre in the Carlos Wolfe GENI trial near Covington, Ohio, and 194-bushel/acre on the Eric Schwantz farm near Lincoln, Ill.

112/110 Day Stealth-1411BT: This YieldGard hybrid features consistently strong yields with excellent late season intactness. Widely adaptable with good gray leaf spot tolerance.

114/111 Day Stealth-1514: Entered as DST-11315 in our GENI strip plots, Stealth-1514 has shown consistent high yields. Better stalks and better roots than Pioneer hybrid 33G26, 33J56, 33Y18m, and 34B23.

Shaver Introduces New Hydraulic StumpBusters

GRAETTINGER, Iowa — Shaver Manufacturing recently introduced their two newest additions of top-quality StumpBusters, designed for operators who need the same stump-cutting ability, but with lower horsepower requirements a — SC-25 and SC-25-H.

The SC-25 is powered by a 15-35 hp tractor; the PTO spins cutting wheel up to 980 rpm delivering high hub torque; the single direction cutting creates aggressive cutting pattern; and it grinds stumps 10-inches below ground.

This PTO-driven, tractor-mounted StumpBuster is specially designed for landscapers, contractors and farmers who are looking for a simple and easy way to grind stumps. Two hydraulic cylinders raise, lower and move the cutting wheel from side to side. grinding stumps into mulch in minutes. SC-25 allows the operator to use smaller compact tractors to maneuver around compact areas while maintaining the power required to grind large stumps.

The SC-25-H features a 15-25 gpm hydraulic hookup; hydraulic motor power ¾-inch thick cutting wheel to 980 rpm; and a 24-inch cutting wheel and high hub torque cut a full 55 degree pass 10 inches deep in less than two minutes.

The new skid-steer loader-mounted StumpBuster is specially designed for contractors, landscapers, maintenance departments and farmers. It provides a simple, efficient maneuverable solution to tree stump removal. Powered by a minimum 15 gpm hydraulic hookup, the SC-25-H can whittle a 45-inch-diameter stump to a 10-inch hole in a single pass without repositioning the unit. The unit can easily be maneuvered around buildings, storage sheds, fencerows, trees and homes without ever leaving the loader seat. The SC-25-H can quickly eliminate a single large-diameter stump, or it can clean up a whole grove.

Shaver Manufacturing offers a new StumpBuster, SC-25, designed for small tractors.

Kuhn Announces Acquisition Of Knight Manufacturing Corporation

BRODHEAD, Wis. — The Kuhn Group, a major global farm implement manufacturer, has agreed to acquire Knight Manufacturing Corporation, a private corporation headquartered in Brodhead, Wis., with facilities in Brodhead, Wis., and Greeley, Colo. Closing of the transaction is expected to occur before the end of 2002, and is subject to the approval of the respective authorities.

Knight Manufacturing Corporation, founded by Stan Knight in 1945, has built a solid reputation as a manufacturer of innovative agricultural and industrial equipment that provide customers with the highest standards in both quality and value. Today, Knight is the world's largest producer of mixing/feeding and manure spreading equipment for the livestock industry. Fiscal 2001 sales were U.S. $45 million, with total employment of approximately 250 people.

This acquisition represents a major step in Kuhn's global long-term growth strategy. With the Knight product range, customer base, sales network, and geographical coverage being complementary to Kuhn's, it is expected that the acquisition will prove beneficial to the growth and long-term viability of both companies.

Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc., Kuhn's North American marketing and distribution company, is headquartered in Vernon, N.Y., USA, with distribution centers and offices in New York, Tennessee, Kansas, Oregon, and Quebec, Canada. The combination of Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc. and Knight Manufacturing Corporation results in more than 300 employees and sales of approximately $100 million.

Kuhn Knight, Inc. will be the name of the new company. It will remain headquartered in Brodhead, Wis., and will continue to focus on its current core business. In the future, it is expected that the newly created company will also act as Kuhn's engineering, manufacturing, and assembly center for future Kuhn products aimed at the large North American market.

JD Mid-Frame Z-Trak® Mowers Tackle Open Fields And Tight Spaces

TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — Designed for high-usage commercial cutters who value productivity, reliability and durability, the John Deere 737 and 757 Mid-Frame Z-Trak® mowers can handle small, tight spaces as well as open fields. These machines are ideal for business and industrial complexes, highly landscaped lots, cemeteries and a host of other applications.

The 23-hp 737 and the 25-hp 757 both feature an overhead valve, air-cooled Kawasaki engine. Overhead valve design provides more horsepower and better fuel efficiency. Full-pressure lubrication and a full-flow filter reduce engine wear and ensure proper lubrication even when operating on hillsides or uneven terrain. Aluminum engine blocks effectively dissipate heat and makes for cooler operating temperatures.

With the two-lever hydrostatic drive control, cutters can select ground speed and direction control simply by moving levers forward or reverse. Operators can mow at up to 10 mph.

JD 757 Mid-Frame Z-Trak mower

Positive neutral lock position for levers provides added safety. Wide-bend steering levers swing out easily for entry and exit from the operator platform.

A large, nine-gallon fuel tank which allows the operator to mow for a full day without refueling. The filler neck size is increased for easier refueling.

The medium-framed zero-turning radius mower features a mid-mount design. This design makes it highly maneuverable in tight spaces and its compact design allow for more trailer space when transporting multiple units.

CNH Reports Third Quarter Loss

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — CNH Global N.V. (NYSE:CNH) recently reported third quarter consolidated revenues of $2.252 billion, compared to $2.159 billion in the same period last year. Adjusted for the impact of acquisitions and favorable foreign exchange rates, revenues declined by three percent in the quarter due to lower sales of construction equipment.

CNH reported a third quarter loss before restructuring charges of $58 million, compared to a third quarter 2001 loss, before restructuring and goodwill amortization, of $81 million. The loss per share was $.10 for the third quarter of 2002, including restructuring costs of $.01 per share.

For the first nine months of 2002, consolidated revenues were $7.354 billion compared to $7.302 billion in 2001. Acquisitions contributed approximately $225 million in the first nine months of 2002; the year-to-date impact of foreign exchange rates was negligible. The company's net loss before restructuring for the first nine months of 2002 was $59 million, compared to a net loss of $93 million, before restructuring and goodwill amortization, for the same period in 2001.

"The extended decline in the construction equipment industry has not slowed our efforts to strengthen our balance sheet or invest for the future." Paolo Monferino, CNH president and chief executive officer, said. "Through concerted efforts to reduce working capital, our Equipment Operations generated $223 million net cash from operations during the last quarter. Since the merger, our profit improvement initiatives have contributed over $500 million to our operating results, putting us well on the way to achieving our $850 million profit improvement target by 2005."

"In spite of the market conditions we have not stopped building for the future. Our new acquisitions, the Kobelco operations in North America and Europe and Shanghai Tractor in China, are profitable and showing real growth in their respective markets. The new products we launched in North America and Europe have been well received and should become increasingly important to our operating income in the months ahead."

Sales of agricultural equipment: Revenues from sales of agricultural equipment totaled $1.429 billion, up four percent compared to $1.374 billion in the third quarter of 2001. Excluding the impact of acquisitions and favorable exchange rates, revenues were unchanged from 2001 levels.

Worldwide, third quarter industry sales of agricultural equipment were up from 2001 levels across all major markets with the biggest percentage increases in Brazil and in the developing markets. However, in North America, industry sales in the combine and high horsepower tractor segments declined.

Worldwide retail sales of CNH agricultural equipment increased significantly in the quarter, with the greatest gains coming from Brazil and Asia. In Western Europe, sales of combines were up substantially, while sales of tractors declined slightly due to limited availability of the new models introduced at the end of the second quarter.

In North America, combine sales declined with the industry and high horsepower tractor sales were impacted by the company's actions to limit its exposure to the risks inherent in the operating lease business. During the quarter, CNH underproduced retail demand by five percent.

Consider A New Kinze Bulk Fill Planter From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today!

FROM THE LEADER IN PLANTER TECHNOLOGY... innovators

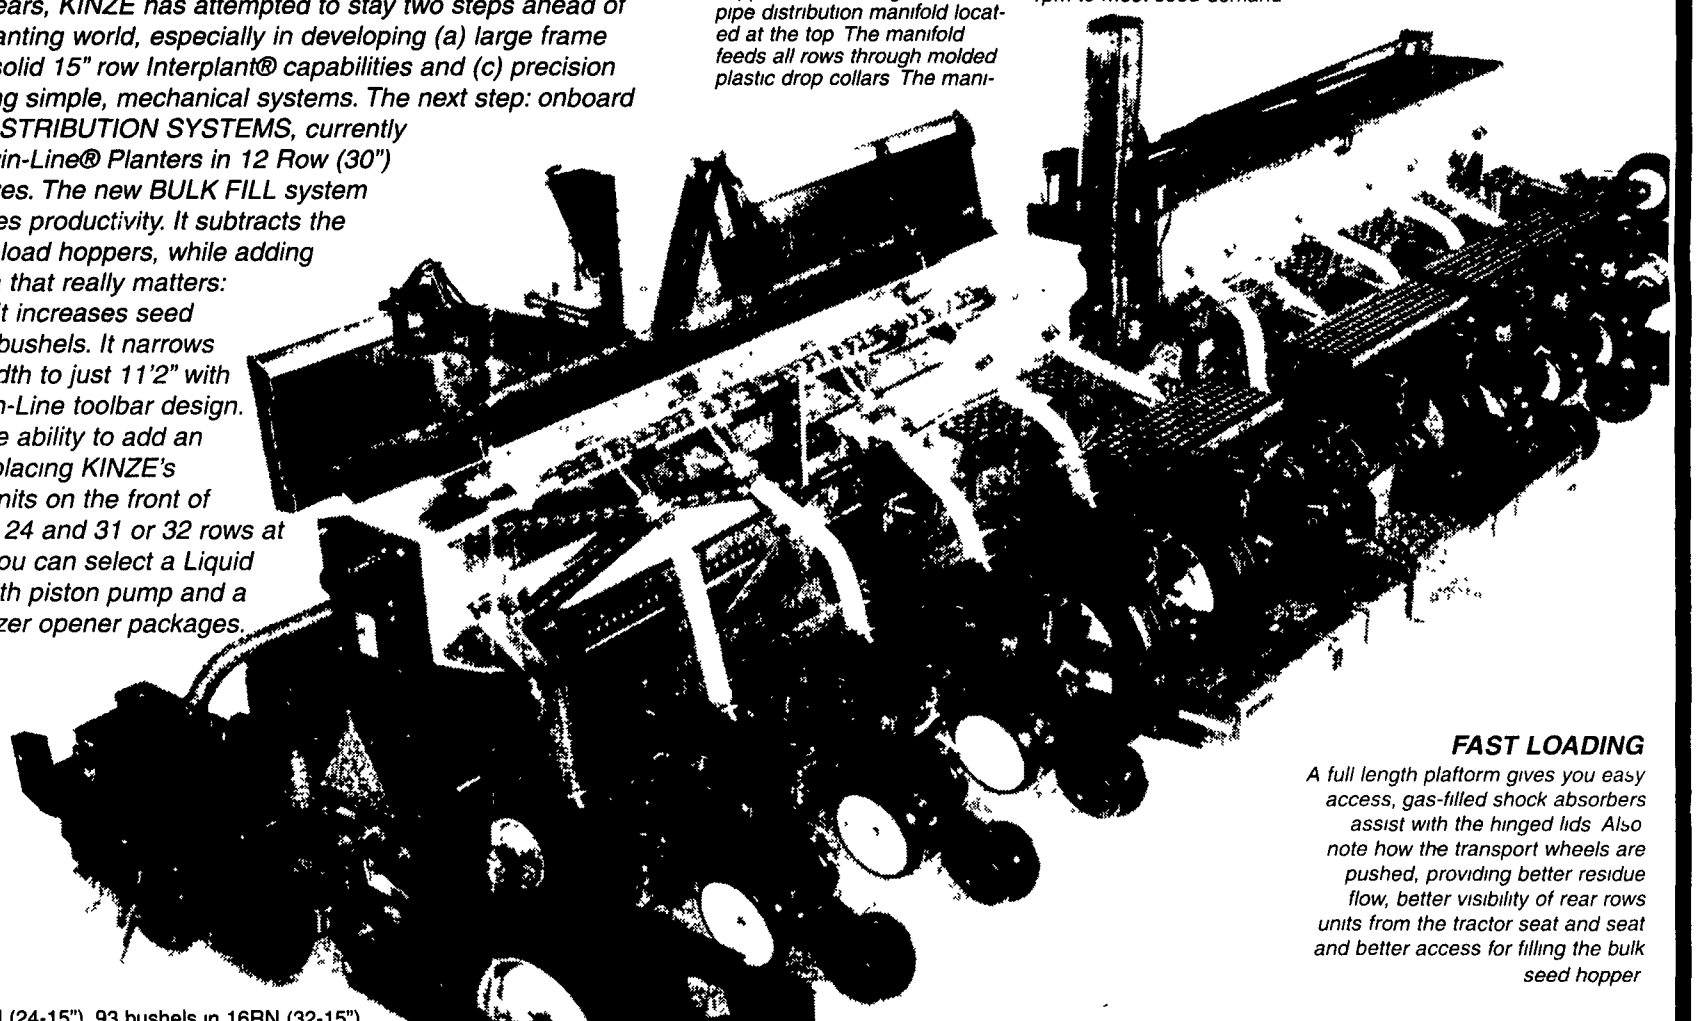
BULK FILL SEED DISTRIBUTION

In Stock With Big Early Order Discount! Now Is The Time To Save $$!!

For the last twenty years, KINZE has attempted to stay two steps ahead of the the rest of the planting world, especially in developing (a) large frame folding planters, (b) solid 15" row Interplant® capabilities and (c) precision seed singulation using simple, mechanical systems. The next step: onboard BULK FILL SEED DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS, currently available on 3650 Twin-Line® Planters in 12 Row (30") and 16 Row (30") sizes. The new BULK FILL system substantially increases productivity. It subtracts the extra time it takes to load hoppers, while adding more time to an area that really matters: in-the-field planting. It increases seed capacities up to 93 bushels. It narrows IN-LINE transport width to just 11'2" with KINZE's popular Twin-Line toolbar design. It gives producers the ability to add an Interplant option by placing KINZE's patented push row units on the front of the toolbar (for 23 or 24 and 31 or 32 rows at 15" spacing)... OR, you can select a Liquid Fertilizer Package with piston pump and a choice of three fertilizer opener packages.*

HOW DOES IT WORK?
Inside twin bulk seed hoppers, nylon bristle-tipped, adjustable-speed augers slowly elevate seed from the bottom of the hopper to a full-length PVC pipe distribution manifold located at the top The manifold feeds all rows through molded plastic drop collars The manifold is rotated to shut off distribution to the front for planting 30" rows only By feeding front and rear rows from the top of the bulk hopper, it ensures constant seed flow (with less see in the hopper) and lowers the center of gravity And power requirements are minimal Only 2 gpm @ 750 psi are required to turn the augers at 25-125 rpm to meet seed demand

RUGGED MINI-HOPPERS
The seed meters are mounted on molded, high density polyethylene mini-hoppers on each row unit The hoppers are fed via 3" (I D) wire-reinforced translucent hoses Seed capacity in each mini-hopper and drop hose is approximately 1/4 bushel



FAST LOADING
A full length platform gives you easy access, gas-filled shock absorbers assist with the hinged lids Also note how the transport wheels are pushed, providing better residue flow, better visibility of rear rows units from the tractor seat and seat and better access for filling the bulk seed hopper

*61 bushels in 12RN (24-15"), 93 bushels in 16RN (32-15")

3650 Twin-Line®
12 Row N (30")
with Interplant® Package and Even-Row Push Row Unit Package
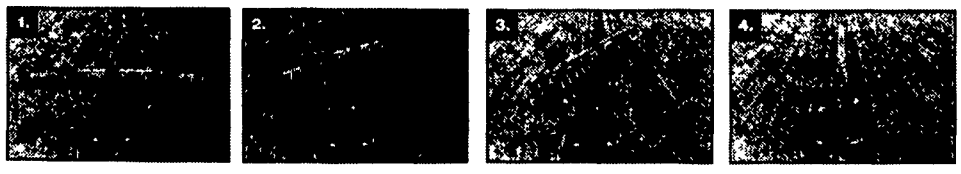
(24 Row 15")

AUGER SPEED CONTROL
Two centrally mounted hydraulic motors, plumbed in series and operated from a third selective control valve, power the auger system Flow control valve allows the operator to adjust auger speed

7° WING FLEX, UP OR DOWN
Four row (12RN) and six row (16RN) wing sections, hinged to a four-row center section, flex up to 7° (up or down) and are hydraulically locked for transport. The two bulk seed hoppers pivot in conjunction with the 3-section frame as it flexes Full-length, internal 2"x6" tubing provides structural support

PATENTED TWIN-LINE® TRANSPORT SYSTEM... 11'2" TRANSPORT WIDTHS
You have complete electric, hydraulic control of the markers, point row clutches and folding and unfolding functions from the tractor seat



KINZE

BULK FILL!
More capacity. Less time Loading —more time for planting.

10:00 AM Making the Most of Farm Forages
Presented by Dr. Charlie Sniffen - President of the Miner Institute in New York

Dr. Sniffen brings more than 40 years of experience in dairy science and nutrition studies. His affiliations with a score of dairy-oriented universities and industry programs from Maine to Michigan and Kentucky, attest to the esteem, which is rightly afforded him by his peers. If it has to do with cows, Dr Sniffen is the one to call. DON'T MISS HIS "KEY-NOTE" PRESENTATION!

SEMINAR II

11:00 AM Proper Nutrition + (TLC) = Improved Herd Health
Presented by Corwin Holtz P.A.S.

Corwin Holtz originally trained as a tech support nutritionist, Mr. Holtz assumed a position as farm manager on a "cutting-edge" 850 cow dairy operation near Homer, N.Y. Corwin Holtz brings a wealth of knowledge in the areas of dairy technology and nutrition. He now serves as a Director of Technical Support for CPG Nutrients.

SEMINAR III

12:30 PM Manure Scoring - "The Proof is in the Patties"
Presented by Dr. Gabriella Varga

Dr. Varga is recognized as a Distinguished Professor of Animal Science at Penn State University. Her significant study and research in the area of dairy science is evident from the numerous papers which she has authored as well as the awards and honors which have been bestowed on her. Well-versed in many areas of nutrition, ration prep, and trouble-shooting, Dr. Varga will also be addressing herd health issues from the "discharge" end of the cow.

SEMINAR IV

1:30 PM Transition Cows - The Most Overlooked, Under-managed Group on Your Farm
Presented by Jeffrey D. Brose, D.V.M.

Dr Jeff Brose graduated from Kansas State University College of Veterinary Medicine in 1986. His private practice in Southeast Nebraska offered conventional veterinary services, production medicine, herd health and nutrition to dairy businesses in Nebraska and Kansas. In 1999, Dr Brose joined Monsanto Dairy Business as Technical Service Specialist assisting producers in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. He uses his experience in private practice to help dairies maximize economic returns with practical, effective dairy cow management. Dr. Brose's interests include dairy facilities design, cow comfort, records analysis, and nutrition

"This planter was designed for specialty crops as well as traditional row crops. No matter what the seed type, farmers can focus on genetics rather than seed size. We filled the planter by putting a different seed size in each of five rows. The sixth row carried a mixture of all of them. Even so, the seeds dropped per revolution of the meter stayed consistent. The smooth seed plate, combined with high vacuum setting, keeps the meter from being sensitive to seed sizes. Seed shape, sizes or weight do not impact how it plants."

ROW CROP TRACTOR PERFORMANCE TESTING

Deer Creek offers many different ways to make sure your tractor is ready to roll in the spring. Call us about having any of these function tests performed.

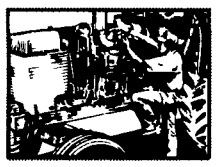
DYNO
Check your tractor's horsepower and performance - are you getting everything you need?

OIL SCAN
Check your oil condition - see if any contaminants are in your oil, and also check for any early signs of engine wear.

COOLANT SCAN
Same as oil scan, but this checks your coolant condition. Coolant breakdown is the number one cause of cylinder liner failure.

BATTERY AND CHARGING TEST
Check your electrical system and make sure you start in the spring.

HYDRAULIC TEST
Check your pressures and GPM



BALLAST
Is your tractor weighted properly?

R134a CONVERSION
Old style freon (R12) has risen dramatically in the last few years. It continues upward at a rate of roughly 35% more each year. R12 has not been manufactured anywhere in the world since 1995. As supplies continue to dwindle, costs rise sharply each year. The fact is soon you will not be able to obtain R12. As the cost of maintaining your R12 machine rises, it will become more cost effective to retrofit than use R12. Can you afford NOT to retrofit?

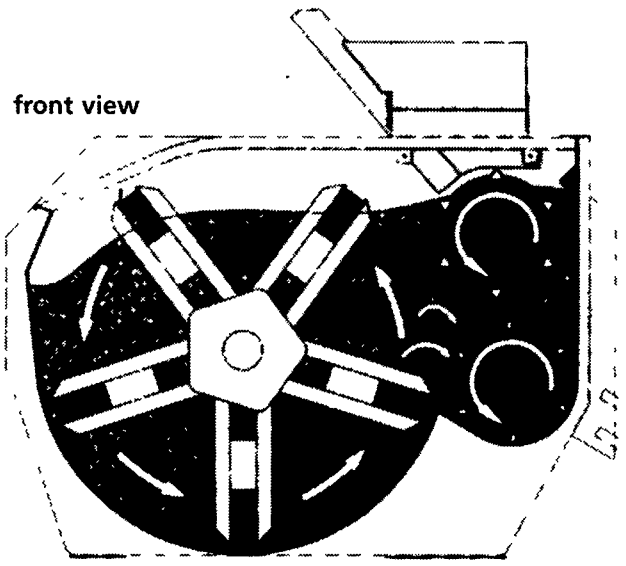
KNIGHT . . . the REEL Advantage

A Faster, More Thorough Mix

front view



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

Biotech Firm To Contract With Local Farmers

ORANGEBURG, S.C. — South Carolina Gov. Jim Hodges and company officials announced that Pilot Therapeutics, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pilot Therapeutics Holdings, Inc. (OTC Bulletin Board: PLTT), a specialty pharmaceutical company, plans to locate its production and manufacturing facility in the Orangeburg City/County Industrial Park near Rt. 26 and Rt. 301.

The company recently announced plans to locate its headquarters and research and development facility in the Charleston region.

Construction on the $8 million manufacturing facility is expected to begin within the next few weeks and take approximately two years to complete. In Orangeburg, Pilot Therapeutics plans to create approximately 80 jobs within five years for the processing of borage and other specialty crops used in the company's medical food and pharmaceutical products.

The impact of Pilot Therapeutics on the state's farming communities could be significant. The company expects to contract South Carolina farmers to grow one-third of its worldwide borage supply, substantially in Orangeburg County, providing an estimated return on investment to local farmers that is five- to sevenfold higher per acre than for traditional crops such as soybeans and winter wheat. Potentially, within a five-year period, 400 farmers may be needed to grow these high-value specialty crops on up to 30,000 acres if market penetration goals for Pilot Therapeutics' products are realized.

A leader in fatty acid metabolism and its role in human health and disease, Pilot Therapeutics is developing a wide range of pharmaceutical and clinically validated over-the-counter (OTC) medical food products, including its lead OTC medical food, Airozin (TM), for the dietary management of asthma.

Borage, a primary specialty crop used in Pilot Therapeutics' products, is an annual plant primarily grown for its seed oil containing gammalinolenic acid (GLA), a key ingredient used in Airozin (TM). At the Orangeburg facility, Pilot plans to process borage and other specialty crops to extract, refine, and concentrate the seed oils used in its medical food and pharmaceutical products, and manufacture these finished products for worldwide shipment.

For more information about Pilot Therapeutics, visit www.pilotp.com, or call (312) 640-6741.

—Eric Habegger, Akron

Eric Habegger, Akron, grows a large variety of fruit trees on his one-acre orchard. In the past few years he has introduced the "espalier" method of pruning and training trees, which trains the trees flat against a wall or framework. These trees still produce abundant amounts of fruit but are easier to care for. Photo by Michelle Kunjappu

New Dairy Products, Marketing Methods At Maryland Dairy's Annual Meeting

NEW MIDWAY, Md. — Dairy processors, retailers, and marketing experts will outline 21st Century techniques at the Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 2002 annual meeting.

The program on Tuesday, Nov. 26, will discuss innovations designed to assure economic viability of Maryland's $1 billion dairy industry in the opening years of the 21st Century, according to MDIA president Myron L. Wilhide of Detour (Carroll County), Maryland.

More than 150 dairy producers and industry representatives are expected to participate in the MDIA 2002 Annual Meeting at the New Midway Volunteer Fire Company, 12045 Woodsboro Pike (Md. Route 194), in this Frederick County community.

Resource panels include officials from Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association, Dairy Maid Dairy, Giant Food, Inc., Marva Maid, Inc., South Mountain Creamery, National Milk Producers Federation, and Moxley's Ice Cream. In addition to showcasing new milk and dairy products, the team will outline how innovative products and procedures, such as cheese-in-a-bag, dairy popcorn, and single-serve milk, are transforming the nation's dairy industry. A special presentation by Maryland's Department of Health and Mental Hygiene will introduce a program using dairy products to combat human osteoporosis.

A minimal registration fee will include a served country-style lunch, program breaks, and complete proceedings. Members are encouraged to bring family or farmstead workers to the industry program. Non-members are welcome. Food service, school lunch, and other nutrition professionals are being invited to experience the new dairy product presentations.

MDIA has designed a new meeting format that promises to be more appealing to the state's 750 dairy producers, officially convening at 10 a.m. and concluding at 3 p.m. An association business meeting is planned for the noon hour. Exhibits will be open at 9 a.m. with continental breakfast served to early attendees.

The 2002 MDIA Annual Meeting will feature about two dozen exhibits on latest dairy technology and services, as well as University of Maryland dairy extension reports, and election of directors and officers.

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

A "clean deck" design that resists cut material build-up, innovative Intra-Drive™ gearboxes engineered and built by Woods, and the fastest blade speeds of any mower in its class. The 3180 Batwing® cuts through brush, up to three inches in diameter. A blade overlap of over six inches, and you have a mower that delivers a quality cut, without streaking. From its heavy-gauge deckplate to its heavy-duty drivelines, we build the 3180 to last. What's more, they come complete with a 36-month gearbox warranty
